LONG LIST OF SUGAR MEN SUBPOENAED FOR TRUST INVESTIGATION

Congress Committee Calls Witnesses From All Over Country to Tell About Formation of the Combine.

C. R. HEIKE ON STAND

Former Secretary of American Refining Company Fails to Shed Much Light on Operations of Concern.

WASHINGTON—Suppoenas were issued today for these witnesses to appear next week before the sugar trust investigating committee of the House: Alfred Harrison and Charles K. Harrison of the Franklin Sugar Refining Company, Philadelphia; Horace Havemeyer, New York; Charles B. Warren, Detroit; Chester S. Moley, Denver; John F. Harper, Cleveland; Joseph F. Smith of the Mormon church and Thomas R. Cutler, Salt Lake City; John D. Spreckels and Adolph Spreckels, San Francisco.

Charles R. Heike, for years secretary of the American Sugar Refining Company, was again a witness before the committee.

When the committee convened, Chairman Hardwick said that Senator Smoot had forwarded a request that Mr. Smith be excused because Thomas R. Cutler of Salt Lake City could give all the testimony that the committee might get from Smith.

Mr. Hardwick announced that he was opposed to excusing Mr. Smith because he was a big factor in the organization of the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company.

"I move that he be ordered to appear," said Representative Baker (Dem., Cal.), and the motion was adopted.

Charles R. Heike, supposed confidant of the late Henry O. Havemeyer, and secretary of the American Sugar Refining Company until his indictment in connection with the sugar customs frauds in New York, was on the stand again today.

The witness talked freely about the tariff. Without protection, he said, the best industry would be unable to continue. He said that in the panic of 1907 the Continental Beet Sugar Company would have gone to the wall if the American Sugar Refining Company had not loaned it money.

Mr. Heike did not think that a prohibitive duty on raw sugar was necessary to keep the sugar industry going. He admitted that the holdings of the American Sugar Refining Company and those of the Havemeyer interests, if combined, would constitute a controlling interest in the Continental, Great Western and Utah-Idaho Beet Sugar companies.

Lowell M. Palmer, a former director of the American Sugar Refining Company, was called next. Before his examination began, Representative Madison read an extract from the minutes of the board of directors of the sugar trust, setting forth the appointment of a committee to "fix the price of sugar," and obtain control of independent companies. This meeting was held Sept. 6, 1898.

Mr. Palmer said that he had been closely associated with Henry O. Havemeyer in the cooperage, lighterage and railroad business from 1873 to 1906. (Continued on Page Two, Column One.)

Foster Eddy of Waterbury, Vt., filed an affidavit in the United States circuit court here on Wednesday asking that the testimony of several persons be taken in connection with his suit to have the residuary clause of the will of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, declared void.

CITY WINS $51,612 VERDICT AGAINST THE ELEVATED COMPANY

Judge Fessenden in the superior court today found for the city of Boston a verdict of $51,612.50 against the Elevated Railway Company. The action was to recover $44,450 paid by the transit commission to the Whittier Machine Company for installing elevators and machinery at the Atlantic avenue station of the East Boston tunnel.

The company claimed the elevators were part of the approaches to the station and should be paid for by the transit commission, which was obliged to construct the station and the approaches.

The city claimed the elevators were part of the equipment of the company, a means of communication from the tunnel to the surface and to the elevated structure. The transit commission installed the elevators so as to avoid delay in opening the station with the understanding that the matter of payment should be left to the court.

Judge Fessenden found in favor of the contention of the city and awarded the full amount with interest at 3 1/2 per cent.

COMMERCE CHAMBER GUESTS OF LAKE CITY VISIT GREAT SHIPYARD

More Than 600 Members of Two Trade Organizations Taken to Quincy on Steamer South Shore.

SPEECHES ARE MADE

Admiral Bowles Says Boston Is in Fair Way to Become One of Greatest Maritime Ports.

One hundred and thirty-five members of the Chicago Association of Commerce and about 500 members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce lustily cheered this afternoon when the submarine torpedo boat Sturgeon slipped into the water at the yards of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy.

Rear Admiral Francis Bowles, president of the company, made a warm speech of welcome to the members of the party when they arrived on board the steamer South Shore after a sail down the harbor from Rowe's wharf.

Preceding the launching a buffet luncheon was served on the fourth floor of the main office building, after which Admiral Bowles spoke. He expressed the hope that one of the visitors, Governor Burke of North Dakota, who was present at the launching of the battleship North Dakota in Nov. 1908, would often visit the yard and that this invitation applied to all the guests present.

Admiral Bowles said the prospects are good that Boston will soon be a first-class maritime port and the best and most economical point for handling the great commerce to and from the Middle West. The development of a merchant marine, he pointed out, was a purely business proposition and when the people would send a business man to the White House and business men to Congress, this would be seen. "If some of you were not so busy, I think it would be a good plan to put one of you there," added the admiral.

The first wedges were put under the Sturgeon at 1:15, but the vessel did not commence to slide down the ways till 1:46, when she entered the waters of the Fore river, before a gathering of more than 1000 people. Miss Little, the sponsor, carried a huge bouquet of roses and was clad in white.

An unusual incident connected with the launching was the fact that she carried two passengers as she slid down the ways, William E. Clough and Robert Martin, the latter the son of J. J. Martin, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange.

The Sturgeon is twin to the Skipjack, launched May 27. The two vessels were built at the Fore River yard by the Electric Boat Company under the direction of Eric H. Ewart, who also had charge of the launching. These two vessels are the largest and most complete submarines afloat. They are each 140 feet long and 350 tons submerged displacement. They carry four large torpedo tubes, each taking a torpedo 17 feet long and 18 inches in diameter, a surface speed of 14 knots and submerged speed of 12 knots.

The visitors left the Hotel Somerset in automobiles at 9 a. m. for the Chamber of Commerce building, where short speeches were made by George S. Smith, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce; Harry A. Wheeler, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and James H. Pettit of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Mr. Smith urged a pledge that "honorably mutual relations shall ever exist between Chicago and Boston, to the advancement of both cities."

Mr. Wheeler spoke of the warm reception the members of his association have received from the Boston Chamber of Commerce. He also called attention to the fact that many of the Chicago members are sons of New England, and that the West was proud to acknowledge its debt to New England.

Leaving Fore River, the party will steam along the North Shore, past Nahant, Swampscott, Marblehead, Lynn, Magnolia, Salem, Beverly, the summer home of President Taft, Manchester-by-the-Sea, and after a tour of Gloucester harbor, return to Boston harbor. (Continued on Page Five, Column One.)

ATWOOD AND PASSENGER FLY OVER SUBURBS TO BLUE HILLS; WALTHAM MEET TO OPEN

ATLANTIC, Mass.—Harry N. Atwood, carrying Dr. Percy L. Reynolds of Amherst College, an aviation pupil, as a passenger, made a flight of 50 miles early today, circling the observatory on the Blue Hills several times and returning to the Squantum aviation field.

Atwood considers this the second longest flight ever made in America with a passenger. Parmelee, with a Wright machine, exceeded this distance in Texas a few months ago.

Thousands of residents of Roxbury, Dorchester and West Roxbury had a close view of the aviators. After leaving Squantum at daybreak the fliers landed on the golf links in Franklin park and filled the tank of the biplane with gasoline from a local garage.

The biplane circled Franklin park twice and then the aviators crossed West Roxbury and out as far as Readville, where they went around the track twice and then flew back toward the Blue Hills.

WALTHAM, Mass.—James V. Martin, flying a baby Grahame-White biplane, will go into the air to open the Metz aviation meet here this afternoon to contest for the prize of $5000 offered for speed.

Wind conditions on the field up to noon were bad, and none of the aviators will take the air until a 25-mile-an-hour breeze goes down.

Earle Ovington in his Blériot monoplane plans to attempt a flight from Waltham to the State House and return. He will also take part in the speed and slow lap contest.

Isidore Seminuk, Joseph Downey and Cromwell Dixon, all in biplanes, also will take part in the speed contest. The Farman biplane, with which Mrs. James V. Martin will enter the meet, has not yet been assembled.

Troop A of the Massachusetts volunteers will also take part in the meet. (Continued on Page Two, Column Five.)

STATE'S LEADERSHIP IN CHARITIES SHOWN AT THE CONVENTION

"Massachusetts' place as a leader in all advanced reformatory and relief work was again emphasized at the many meetings of the national charity conference just closed. If the standards of such work in this state were reached in other parts of the country, I believe the time would soon come when poverty would be extinct."

This statement was made today by C. C. Carstens, chairman of the publicity committee of the conference.

MANITOU STRIKES PIER AND SHAKES UP IMMIGRANTS

Ferri Weise, William Burke and John Dolan, inspectors, quieted several score immigrants on the Red Star dock today when part of the pier and shed were torn off by the Manitou. Captain Pollard, while she was leaving her dock.

C. W. Frye, pilot, was in charge of the vessel. Either the tide was running stronger than he estimated or the Manitou had not been pulled far enough into the stream, for the vessel in turning her prow toward the outer harbor failed by some 20 feet to clear the pier.

The pier shook with the impact and part of the piling and shed were carried away. The bow of the vessel was slightly damaged, but it proceeded on its way to Philadelphia. There the remainder of her cargo and several passengers will be taken on board and the vessel will proceed to Antwerp.

JACOB SCHIFF OFFERS $1,000,000 TO FOUND GERMAN UNIVERSITY WITH EQUAL RIGHTS FOR JEWS

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAINE, Germany—An offer of $1,000,000 to found a university in this city, his birthplace, was made today by Jacob Schiff, the New York banker, who is now visiting in Germany. The only condition named by Mr. Schiff is that Jewish students and professors shall have the same rights and privileges in the university as enjoyed by others. Jews have not this equality in most of the German universities.

LONG LIST OF SUGAR MEN SUBPOENAED FOR TRUST INVESTIGATION

Before he became a director of the American Sugar Refining Company, Mr. Palmer said he had charge of the "contracts and agreements between the sugar company and railroads."

Mr. Palmer admitted that the sugar interests obtained rebates on freight rates prior to 1891.

"After that I made an agreement whereby the American Sugar Refining Company was supposed to pay a full rate," said he.

He declared that rebates were necessary because of the competition in those days. The same competition forced the organization of the sugar trust, he said.

SALESMEN MEET FOR CONVENTION AT NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Salesmen representing every line of merchandise of importance in the country are assembled today in New Haven for the sixteenth annual three-day convention of the Grand Council of New England, United Commercial Travelers of America. It is expected that the affair will exceed in importance the 1910 annual meeting held in Springfield, Mass., with upward of 2500 present. The convention committee, New Haven council, No. 293, the city and the chamber of commerce have taken a big interest in the entertainment of the delegates.

The chief business of today was the meeting of the executive council in Odd Fellows hall at 2 p. m., called to order by J. C. Gerry of Lewiston, Me., the grand councilor. Mayor Frank J. Rice welcomed the visitors and gave them the freedom of the city. There will be an election of officers for the ensuing year this afternoon.

Friday will be devoted largely to sight-seeing, the green will be illuminated in the evening with 10,000 electric lights and at midnight the Ancient and Imperial Order of Bagdad is to parade.

In the Saturday morning parade there will be about 1600 men in line. Among the New England cities represented by councils are New Haven, Hartford, Bridgeport, Norwich, Boston, Springfield, Worcester, Haverhill, Lynn, Lowell, Providence, Portland, Burlington, Lewiston, St. Johnsbury, Bangor, Rutland and Dover.

FUSILIERS ALL READY FOR THE TRIP TO BOSTON

ST. JOHN, N. B.—Arrangements for the departure of the sixty-second Fusiliers for Boston on Saturday have been completed and the regiment will go full strength in uniforms which have been worn only once.

Lt. Col. J. L. McAvity will be in command and will have with him Maj. J. S. Frost and H. Perley, with a full staff besides Mayor Frink, John McGoldrick, chairman of the board of works, and Colonel Buchanan, commander of the boys' brigades in St. John.

The regiment had its annual sham battle and field day in the vicinity of the city on Saturday. Major Frost commanding the attacking half of the force and Major Perley directing the defense. While there was no decision by the umpires the invaders claimed a victory.

AMMUNITION BLAMED FOR DEFEAT OF THE FEDERALS IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY.—When General Navarro is placed on trial before a military tribunal and asked to explain why he surrendered Juarez, the evidence will show a weakness in the Diaz military machine, according to Manuel Urquidí, one of the advisers of Madero at Juarez. When an inventory was taken of the armament used by Navarro it was found that 150,000 cartridges contained in five boxes held such a small amount of powder that it would not carry the bullets more than 20 meters.

What appears to be boxes of the same consignment are in Chihuahua as well as in Juarez and the number of cartridges is estimated at 500,000. The ammunition was manufactured at the government cartridge factory.

Among other armament captured at Juarez, according to Urquidí, were 200 shells of 80 millimetres, which were useless to Navarro because his mortars were of 70 millimetres caliber.

If these facts are substantiated in the trial of General Navarro, it is assumed by military men that he will be vindicated.

This committee of five to pass on all claims for indemnity growing out of the revolution has been named: Pedro Lascurain, Alfredo Robles Domínguez, Gen. Samuel García Cuellar, Gen. José Gonzales Salas and José Diego Fernandez.

LOS ANGELES.—Ricardo Flores Magón, head of the Mexican socialist revolutionary junta in this city, was arrested on a federal indictment, charging him with violating the neutrality laws of the United States.

At the same time, Anselmo Figueroa and Librado Rivera, associates of Magón, against whom similar indictments were returned, were taken into custody.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Five hundred Magonistas, with an almost inaccessible retreat in the hills 50 miles south of Piedras Negras, are plundering that region of Mexico with little to fear from the few troops near them, according to information brought by I. Vara of Piedras Negras.

SEES PLOT TO GIVE $500,000,000 TO THE SPRINKLER TRUST

NEW YORK.—Charges that collusion exists between the fire department and the fire extinguisher trust for the purpose of compelling all factories in the city to install automatic sprinklers at an estimated cost far in excess of $500,000,000, are contained in papers now under the consideration of the appellate term of the supreme court.

John J. O'Connell filed the papers containing the charges, in connection with appeals by two clients of his, Christman & Co. and Winter & Co., both piano manufacturers, from judgments, directing these firms to pay penalties of $50 each for refusing to obey an order requiring the installation of automatic sprinklers in their factories.

The Christman and Winter cases, said Mr. O'Connell, are brought to test the law, which gives the fire commissioner such wide latitude in fire-prevention matters. Some 200 other cases await the outcome of the present two, he said, and every factory owner in the city is deeply interested.

"The fire department," said Mr. O'Connell, "recognizes the plans of only five manufacturers of these automatic sprinklers, the principal one of the five being the General Fire Extinguisher Company, sometimes known as the fire extinguisher trust, a $5,000,000 corporation of which Ohio C. Barber, president of the Diamond Match Company, is the head.

"There is a plan on foot to make it compulsory for every factory over 50 feet in height to install these automatic sprinklers. That plan is concealed in the new building code, which Charles P. Murphy, the Tammany Hall leader, and his adherents are determined to force through the board of aldermen."

HAGGERTY INDICTED.
An indictment for murder was returned by the grand jury today against Thomas Haggerty, the Dorchester waiter who confessed that he turned on the gas in the room where his three children were sleeping on the night of May 3.

HARBOR STREET HOUSE BURNS.
SALEM, Mass.—Fire in the two-family house at 13 Harbor street yesterday noon caused $1000 damage. The house is owned by Alphonse Pellitteri.

BAKING FIRMS IN EAST MERGE, BUT SAY AIM IS NOT BREAD TRUST

NEW YORK.—Twenty-one baking companies extending from Boston to St. Louis and New Orleans have consolidated under the name of the General Baking Company, with a total capital of $20,000,000 in stock and $5,000,000 in bonds. The new chain of bakeries will have but one link in each of 14 cities. Rochester, N. Y., and Boston, Mass., claim two plants each, while Buffalo, N. Y., will have three.

Of the authorized issues of stock and bonds the first issue is announced as follows:

First and refunding mortgage 6 per cent bonds, $3,500,000 cumulative, 7 per cent preferred stock, $7,000,000, and common stock $5,000,000. The authorized capital will be divided equally between common and preferred stock.

"In the formation of the General Baking Company," the announcement reads, "there is no thought of purpose of the establishment of a monopoly in the manufacture or sale of bread. Such a monopoly would be impossible, as in most localities, with few exceptions, only one baking company has been acquired, leaving competition open to hundreds of others."

Other cities with companies participating in the merger are New York, Providence, Newark, Jersey City, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington, Cleveland, Canton, Ohio, Toledo, Detroit and Wheeling.

GARBAGE DISPOSAL COMPANY A S K S FOR RETRACTION

The Boston Development & Sanitary Company sent a letter today to Louis K. Rourke, commissioner of public works, protesting against his calling the company's bid "more or less indefinite as to the final disposition of the refuse."

The letter says that the interests of the company are damaged by this statement and asks that he retract. Quotations are given from the firm's bidding letter, setting forth details of disposal methods and showing that they were fuller than the bid of the company regarded as "most satisfactory in detail, but too high in price" by Commissioner Rourke.

The company protests against a total rejection of the bids, alleging that such rejection would work unfairness to the participants in an extensive competition. Protest is also made against the proposal to call for short term contracts.

The letter closes with an appeal to the commissioner's "reputation for fairness and businesslike methods" to consider the proposals now in hand and accept the best.

GERMANY DENIES CASTRO'S VESSEL RIGHT TO ITS FLAG

BERLIN.—The German government disclaims all responsibility for the steamer Consul Grostuck which is reported as flying the German flag, and announces that the blame for any complications that may result from the landing of Cipriano Castro, the exiled president of Venezuela, will rest upon the Haitian government.

It is stated that the steamer has no right to display the German colors. It was formerly the Italian cruiser Umbria and was purchased from Italy by Haiti which country is the one now properly concerned with the movement of the vessel.

American Ambassador Hill called at the foreign office today presumably to discuss the situation brought about by the reported presence of Castro on the Consul Grostuck.

MOORE'S HORSES WIN AT OLYMPIA.

LONDON.—Judge William H. Moore of New York, American exhibitor at Olympia, took first prize in the horse show Wednesday with his novice tandem bays, Margus and Lady Auckland. In the class for novice pairs, not exceeding 15 hands, he won fifth prize with Charm and Memento Pride, and sixth with Bruno and Kara.

SELECTS PHILADELPHIA LAWYER.

TRENTON, N. J.—John White, formerly a lawyer of Philadelphia, and now one of the proprietors of the Marlborough-Blenheim at Atlantic City, has been appointed by Governor Wilson to fill the remaining vacancy on the bench of the court of errors and appeals.

ROOSEVELT REPLY TO GENERAL OTIS AND MR. GOMPERS

NEW YORK.—"Mr. Gompers, General Otis and the 'Dynamite Charges'" is the heading of a leading editorial in the current Outlook, which is Colonel Roosevelt's direct answer to editorials of General Otis in the Los Angeles Times and President Gompers in the American Federationist.

Colonel Roosevelt refers to his original editorial on the McNamara arrests in the Outlook, which he says was only a personal plea for a fair and impartial trial of the accused men. He then quotes from General Otis' reply to him and says:

"General Otis in this article has taken the very position against which all good citizens should protest when taken by the labor men. The purpose of my article was to protest against the assumption before the trial what it was hoped to prove or disprove at the trial; and in this way General Otis is guilty of conduct which could not be too severely denounced if the offender were a labor leader, and which therefore cannot be too severely denounced when the offender is a violent opponent of organized labor."

He adds that the editorial by Mr. Gompers "offers the most striking contrast, in tone and temper to the article of General Otis. . . . Mr. Gompers says that the trades unionists only want a fair trial. That is all I wish. Let us find out who is guilty and who is innocent. . . . Now let me most earnestly ask Mr. Gompers and those associated with him in the cause of labor that they, in their turn, make it equally evident that they do not intend to stand by the men right or wrong. . . . That they will join with every other citizen in hearty condemnation of them and will endeavor to bring them to punishment if they are guilty."

BETTER AMERICAN GOODS URGED FOR ARGENTINA TRADE

"People of the Argentine Republic desire American products of the best quality," said Prof. Richard H. Tucker of the Lick observatory, engineer in charge of the construction of the observatory for the Carnegie Institute in Argentina, who has just returned from that country, speaking before the Malden Board of Trade Wednesday evening. While there is considerable American trade with Argentina, Professor Tucker declared that it is not developed as it should be; that there is a vast field for high-priced American products for the wealthier people of that country, most of whom would buy from the United States but who are obliged to purchase these products of other countries.

He cited a great demand for American automobiles, and said those sent there thus far have not been finished as luxuriously as the people there demand. He noticed a desire for high-priced American boots and shoes, but asserted that American manufacturers are sending an inferior quality there while European makers are selling the better grades of these articles.

The need of an American bank and American capital for railroads was spoken of by Professor Tucker.

PARENTS HEAR BRITISH TEACHER

F. J. Gould, lecturer of the Normal Instruction League of England and for 25 years a teacher in English primary schools, spoke to the Fathers and Mothers' Club yesterday afternoon in the rooms of the Twentieth Century Club. Mr. Gould told stories to a class of 30 children from neighboring public schools, which entertained them while he was giving an object lesson to the crowded roomful of parents and teachers in education by story telling.

HOLD UP HOTEL CLERK.

NEW YORK.—Eight men strolled into the lobby of the Hotel Roy in Thirty-fifth street early today as the night clerk was making up his accounts and compelled him to give up the money. Policemen caught two men who were identified later as Joe Ross and Louis Baumann. The police recovered $113 of the money. Of the six that escaped one at least is believed to have been wounded.

AVIATOR MARTIN IS READY TO FLY FOR SPEED AT WALTHAM

teer militia cavalry will do patrol duty on the field during the meet.

The prizes for the meet aggregate $50,000, half of which is offered for two cross-country flights.

Governor Foss and party have accepted invitations to attend the meet tomorrow or Saturday and the following committee has been named to receive them: Col. George H. Doty, assistant United States treasurer, Boston, Edward A. Walker, mayor of Waltham, and the Watertown board of selectmen.

Mr. Ovington made his first flight from the field Wednesday evening when at an altitude of 3000 feet he sailed over Waltham, Waverley, Belmont and Lexington and returned to the field. He was cheered by the spectators for executing fancy spirals and glides as he alighted.

Lincoln Beachey and C. C. Witmer have arrived at Readville park with their aeroplanes, and will set them up today. Beachey said he would make a flight around the Blue Hill observatory, and carry up passengers. He also expects to pay a call to the Waltham field in his biplane.

LEGISLATORS PLAN TO FORCE REPORTS ON APPROPRIATION BILLS

An order may be introduced in the Legislature within a day or two directing the committee on ways and means to report its appropriation bills to the Legislature without waiting any longer for the reports of Governor Foss' experts, according to plans discussed by a group of leading legislators during the noon recess at the State House today.

"Unless some step is taken to hasten the reporting of the bills in question prorogation of the Legislature may be delayed until investigation of the Legislature the first or middle of August," said Representative Norman H. White, House chairman of the committee on ways and means. "The committee would be only too glad to make the necessary report if it were not for the fact that the committee is tacitly bound to wait for the report of Governor Foss' experts," he said.

"If the House will adopt an order directing the committee on ways and means to report these bills we will send them in immediately and the Legislature can then finish its business within a reasonable limit, but until such an order is passed the committee cannot and will not go ahead until the experts' reports have been received."

"If we did report before the experts made their report to us it would be charged that we are lacking in courtesy to his excellency; and this would be held against the members of the committee as a campaign issue this fall," said Mr. White.

Allen T. Treadway, president of the Senate, said that he would like very much to see such an order adopted and that he would be glad to give his support when it reached the Senate.

When asked what date the Legislature would prorogue this year President Treadway said it depended entirely upon the committee on ways and means and that no prediction could be made as to the closing day.

Representatives Beans and Fay were of the opinion that something should be done immediately to secure an early report by the committee of the appropriation bills now pending before it.

Today is the date upon which the Legislature prorogued last year. Many of the legislators believe that it will take another month to clean up the business now before it. The year previous the Legislature prorogued June 19.

WILMINGTON, Del.—Victor A. Du Pont, Jr., until recently vice-president of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours Powder Company, passed away Wednesday at his home here.

PACIFIC POSTMASTERS TO MEET.

PORTLAND, Ore.—The postmasters of Washington and Oregon will meet next year in June in this city for a three days' session.

CANADIAN JUSTICE PRAISES PEACE WORK IN SYRACUSE ADDRESS

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—"The people of the United States may well be proud that the first practical steps toward international peace throughout the world are made within and by that nation," declared Justice William Renwick Riddell of the King's bench, Toronto, in his commencement oration to the graduates of Syracuse University Wednesday.

Justice Riddell and John D. Archbold, vice-president of the Standard Oil Company, were made doctors of literary humanities by the university.

"The splendid services to the cause of peace made by the late President of this nation," he said, "are followed by the still more splendid services of Mr. Taft, enthusiastically supported as he is by statesmen of both sides of politics."

"The Prince of Peace is coming—perhaps not today or tomorrow, but he must needs come—and blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the children of God."

Justice Riddell characterized President Taft's peace proposal that every international question should be submitted to judicial arbitration as an epoch-making statement.

"I have always thought," he said, "that the President of the United States has the greatest power for good or ill of any man upon the face of the earth, and in this instance the President rose even to the heights of his great opportunity."

The honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred on Martin Augustus Knapp of Syracuse and Washington, president of the commerce court; the Rev. Michael Clune of Syracuse and Judge A. C. Fanning of Towanda, Pa. Prof. Irene Sargent of the College of Fine Arts received the degree of master of letters.

There were 338 students in the graduating class.

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass.—Announcing a conditional gift of $100,000 Miss Mary E. Woolley, president of Mt. Holyoke College, conferred bachelors' degrees upon 130 young women at the seventy-eighth annual commencement on Wednesday.

The principal address was by the Rev. Dr. Henry Stiles Bradley of Worcester. Miss Louise B. Wallace was the chief marshal and a vested choir of students rendered musical selections.

President Woolley said that during the year gifts and bequests aggregating $151,361 had been received for the general uses of the college.

In October, 1912, the seventy-fifth anniversary of the college will be observed and plans have been on foot to secure an endowment fund of $500,000 by that time.

The general education board of New York has promised to give $100,000 on condition that the balance of $400,000 be raised before October, 1912.

President Woolley announced that Mrs. John S. Kennedy of New York had promised $100,000 on condition that the balance of the endowment fund be secured, and other gifts received reduce the amount necessary to be raised before October, 1912, to $238,000.

DISTRIBUTE TROUT IN MAINE PONDS

AUGUSTA, Me.—The state fish hatcheries have just finished distributing 3,000,000 young trout to various ponds and streams in Maine. The hatcheries have on hand an equal number for distribution in the fall. There were 258 different lots sent out to as many different localities.

SHIPPING INTERESTS CONSIDER SPREAD OF STRIKE IMPROBABLE

LONDON.—Possibilities of a complete international seamen's strike are considered remote today by the shipping interests. The strike was formally declared Wednesday night in London, Glasgow, Liverpool, Cardiff, Bristol, Southampton and other British ports and also at Belgian and Dutch ports.

Whether or not the channel crews and the vessels running out of French ports are to quit will be decided tonight. Various boards of trade in the cities already affected are appointing conciliation committees and hope to force a speedy settlement.

There appears small hope here that either Germany, Norway or Denmark will come into the movement.

Work proceeded as usual on the London docks today.

The White Star liner Teutonic and the Canadian Pacific steamship Empress of Ireland, at Liverpool, are still without deckhands, but the stewards of both vessels have signed.

At a mass meeting in East London attended by 3000 sailors and firemen, the signal for the strike was given. This consisted in the firing of three rockets and the unfurling of a banner inscribed, "The War Is Now Declared."

SOUTHAMPTON.—The strike of coal porters, which broke here on June 9, was settled Wednesday evening. The men return to work on compromise terms. The steamship St. Paul, which should have sailed from this port last Saturday for New York, probably will get away today.

Denies Coastwise Strike

"There is absolutely no truth in the report from New York that 20,000 coastwise seamen may go on strike tomorrow," said William H. Frazier, secretary and treasurer of the International Seamen's Union of America, with offices in Boston, today.

"Although the coastwise seamen have filed grievances, they have no reason to strike at present. It would not be good policy to strike at this time as the union is unprepared, as well as the men."

IRISH COMPANY TO PLAY HERE.

LONDON.—The United States is likely to see the entire company of Irish players from the Abbey theater, Dublin, this fall, as Liebler is said to be negotiating for an engagement of 18 weeks. There seems to be no doubt that the contracts will be signed.

MIDDIES AT QUEENSTOWN.

QUEENSTOWN.—The American battleships, Massachusetts, Iowa and Indiana with the midshipmen from Annapolis on board, arrived here Wednesday. The collier Vulcan accompanied them. The middies are on their annual summer cruise.

CAPTAIN DAVENPORT EXPECTING STRONG TRACK TEAM IN 1912

University of Chicago Will Lose Five Point-Winners, but Will Gain Several Promising New Ones.

SPRINTS WEAKEST

CHICAGO—Captain-Elect Davenport looks forward to 1912 as a big track year for Chicago. The team will be weakened by the loss of five point-winners from this year's squad, and will gain the services of some star freshmen who, in Davenport's estimation, will more than make up for the loss. Earle and Straube in the dashes, Gifford in the quarter, Timblin in the half and Long in the mile, graduate this spring. Chief among the new recruits is Scruby, the freshman weight star who won the shot and discus in the interscholastic last year. He put the 12-pound weight, 50ft., and is good for consistent performances of 44 and 45ft. with the heavy shot. Besides this he is doing great work with the discus and hammer, and Davenport says he would not be surprised to see the young giant carry off all three events in the 1912 conference meet.

It is expected that Cowley, the star miler who won the 1909 interscholastic event in 4m. 33s., will be eligible for competition next year, which would brace up materially the weakest department of the maroon team. Rudy Matthews, who did some surprising work in the sprints early in the season, but who has been unable to compete, will be available next year. Matthews developed lots of speed and promises to be a strong varsity sprinter. Forbes, who was a Hyde Park high school dash man, will strengthen the sprints also.

Kent Chandler, a sophomore, won the interclass quarter last week in 54s., surprising everybody. He ran an exceptional race with little training, and promises to develop into a good quarter-miler next year. Another sophomore quarter and half-miler who will be available next year is Paine, the basket ball star, who could not compete this season. Dickerson and Lawler are the best new pole vaulters in sight, but neither one has any remarkable performances to his credit. Coyle will still be eligible in this department.

The loss of Earle and Straube will weaken the sprints, and Matthews seems the only first class man left. The quarter will be strong with Davenport and Skinner left and Chandler and Paine as added strength. Three of this year's Philadelphia relay team will be back next year, Davenport, Skinner and Menaui, Straube being the only one lost. Whiting and Kuh will both be back to take care of the hurdles and should both be better next year. The half has lost Timblin, but will still have Davenport and the new man Paine. Long is lost in the mile, but Cowley is a faster man. The two-mile is still weak, without a single strong contender.

Menaui and Scruby are a strong pair for the weights, and Menaui will also be valuable in the high jump. Kuh is the only first class broad jumper in sight. The pole vault will still have Coyle, one of the best vaulters in the conference league.

BROWN BLANKS AMHERST NINE

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Brown's baseball team defeated Amherst 6 to 0 Wednesday, the visitors being obliged to be content with but one hit throughout the game. Vernon weakened in the fourth inning, when Brown made five runs easily with the Amherst pitcher's help, and he was replaced by Quintance in the fifth, who gave but one hit the remainder of the game. Brae-Burn won by 3-0, and will have to play six single matches, which constitute the other half of the contest, at the Country Club, where, if it wins two matches, it will pass into the second round. The summary:

Brae-Burn—W. C. Chick and P. Gilbert (5-3), P. G. Angus and H. A. Rourke (2-1), W. S. Walt and W. E. Stiles (6-2), 1 total 3.

WOMEN'S SINGLES IN SEMI-FINALS AT PHILADELPHIA

Favorites All Come Through Fourth Round—Doubles and Mixed Doubles Are Started.

PHILADELPHIA—The semi-final round in singles, and matches in doubles and mixed doubles are scheduled for today in the women's national lawn tennis championship tournament for the titles of 1911 on the courts of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, and with the better players competing against each other, some fast work is expected.

Miss Eleanor Sears easily outplayed Mrs. W. Hardy in the fourth round of singles Wednesday, winning in straight sets, but Mrs. G. Warren of Boston experienced no little difficulty in reaching the semi-final round at the expense of Miss E. B. Hardy.

The most interesting contest in the doubles was that between Miss Hotchkiss and Miss Sears and Miss Elizabeth Moore and Miss Lois Moyes. Miss Hotchkiss and Miss Sears won by two sets to one, and a great factor in the victory was the magnificent overhead work of Miss Hotchkiss.

Great interest was taken in the mixed doubles match between Miss Sears and W. J. Cloutier and Miss Green and R. J. Crozier. Miss Sears and Cloutier were able to win the first set 7-5 and the second 6-2. The local pair lost the third set 6-2. The summary:

B. A. A. GOLF MATCH PLAY DRAWINGS

Beals C. Wright, the tennis expert, proved himself a fine golfer as well Wednesday by leading the field of 27 starters in the qualifying round for the championship of the B. A. A. at the Wollaston Golf Club with Bryan S. Permar of the Boston Yacht Club. Both had cards of 80 for the 18 holes. S. B. Reed, with a card of 86-16-70, won the prize offered for the best net score in the handicap competition held in connection with the qualification. Immediately following the completion of the round the drawings for match play were made which resulted as follows:

HARVARD VARSITY HAS TENDENCY TO CLIP THE STROKE

Men Show Great Power by Covering Some Twelve Miles During Day—No Changes Made.

RED TOP, Conn.—Followers of the Harvard varsity eight are today confident that their crew has the necessary power to 'cover the four-mile course in the annual race with Yale following the stamina shown by the oarsmen in their hard 12-mile row Wednesday. Long rows at a low stroke were the order of the day for all the crews.

In the morning Coach Wray in a single followed the varsity and freshman eights down to the navy yard in short stretches interspersed with much coaching. On the way back he gave the two crews a short brush of half a mile, the varsity winning out by about two lengths, rowing a somewhat higher stroke than the freshmen.

The work of the varsity was not up to standard as the men shortened up on their strokes, clipping the catch. The freshmen, however, are improving by leaps and bounds. The two substitutions made Tuesday seem to get the men together better and are likely to be permanent.

In the afternoon the two eights again went down stream together, this time to the three-mile mark. Coach Wray laid special emphasis on lengthening the stroke at the catch and getting a firm hold with the oars well buried. The return row showed a great improvement in this respect and the boat spaced out well between the strokes. The freshmen also did well and stuck close to the varsity all the way home. The four took easy rows over the two-mile course.

Following the usual tradition, Manager Amory of the freshman crew received his initiation to Red Top by a ducking in the Thames at the hands of the members of the eight. No changes were made in the orders of any of the crews.

MICHIGAN'S NEW ATHLETIC HOUSE OPENS NEXT FALL

Work Progressing on Building Which Will Provide Accommodations on Ferry Field for 900 Students.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—After years of waiting, Ferry field is to be provided with a clubhouse for the University of Michigan athletes that will be on a par with those of other universities of equal rank throughout the country. The contract calls for the completion of the building by the first of October of this year. The estimated cost is $30,000.

The design will be what is known as "English clubhouse" and the building will be 66 x 59 feet, with a height of two stories. The entire front of the structure will be devoted to a lounge room with a big open fireplace around which will be arranged chimney seats. In the rear of this room will be the shower baths, lockers and rubbing rooms. These will be so devised that there will be two sets, consisting of 9 lockers, a rubbing room and 130 full-length steel lockers on each side. Floors throughout this part of the building will be made of cement composition.

In fact the entire construction of the building will be with the idea of rendering it fireproof—about the only wood that will be used being in the windows and the floor of the lounge room. Upstairs there will be a large lecture room for the use of the different varsity squads, and 568 more lockers, making in all nearly 900. The basement will contain the steam heating plant and the hot water boilers for the showers. The clubhouse will be built with the rear taking the place of part of the present brick wall that surrounds the field, and two gates will also be let into the wall, one on each side, to give entrance to the side doors of the building. Brick will be used throughout in the construction with stone coping and a dark green slate roof. The structure will be located to the left of the Ferry field gate.

It has not been decided just what rules will be made in regard to the letting out of lockers, aside from the supplying of the members of varsity and all-freshman teams. It is possible though that members of the athletic association will be provided with lockers at a nominal fee.

Veteran Oarsman Who Has Been Put in Second Four by Coach Kennedy

Considering Prevailing Conditions Coach Kennedy Is Pleased With Work—Expect Change in Freshmen.

C. L. BUCKINGHAM '11.

BASEBALL PICKUPS

Lowell and Worcester are having a great race in the New England league. Only one game separates them today.

Captain White of Princeton varsity nine closed his athletic career at that university with great credit when he held Yale to three hits and no runs.

Second game with Cleveland today and with the Athletics beating Chicago and Detroit-New York, the local boys have a chance to hold on to third place.

Great game in Philadelphia with Chief Bender and Walsh as the opposing pitchers. Bender won out, but principally on the errors made by the Chicago players. Each team got 7 hits.

If the Harvard varsity nine has regained its batting eye as seemed evident in one inning of the game with Holy Cross, yesterday, the crimson's chances against Yale are much brighter.

Have the New York Americans at last found themselves? Five straight makes it look as if the Highlanders would have to be counted in the running. They are now close up to Boston in fourth place.

Ford showed that he is a wonderful pitcher yesterday when he struck out Cobb and Crawford in succession with men on bases. The times these two men strike out in a season can be counted on the fingers of your hands.

With J. E. Harrington of Wakefield signed to play with the Detroit team, we may see a school battery taking part in major league baseball before fall. Casey, now catching for the Tigers, caught Harrington at Wakefield some years ago.

Next year will probably see the coaching lines in the American league moved back about two yards from their present position. There of the managers favor the move which has been recommended to President Johnson. Those favoring it are Jennings, Detroit; Donovan, Boston, and Duffy, Chicago.

American league followers are beginning to wonder which team is going to stop the Athletics. They have lost but one game to a western team since they came home and that was to Des Moines. With the entire team hitting for better than .300 and the pitchers going right, it will take a wonderful nine to beat the world's champions.

FIRST TIME TRIAL FOR YALE VARSITY SHOWS PROMISE

Considering Prevailing Conditions Coach Kennedy Is Pleased With Work—Expect Change in Freshmen.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—That the Yale varsity eight will give a good account of itself in the big race with Harvard is the opinion of those who saw the crew go over the four-mile course in its first time trial of the year Wednesday. Conditions were far from the best, yet the crew did the distance in 23m. 34s., and appeared to be very fresh at the finish.

Coach Kennedy expresses the opinion that this time was fairly satisfactory considering the conditions. Under fast conditions a good crew has usually covered the distance in anywhere from 21m. to 21m. 30s., but under poor conditions has not done better than Yale did Wednesday.

The stroke was kept down to an average of 30 to the minute, but the eight has usually rowed a higher stroke. The normal gait of the crew is from 32 to 34 to the minute, with an occasional sprint up to 38.

Another shift has been made in the four oar by which another veteran of the 1910 eight was relegated to the sub list. Howe was put in at stroke in the varsity four and Appleton, who has been rowing stroke, was moved to No. 2. Buckingham, who has been at No. 2 and who is a veteran of the 1910 varsity eight, was taken out of the boat. Whether this change is final is impossible to tell. This change cuts down the weight of the four considerably.

The freshman eight has not been changed, but it is generally believed that Denman and Bugbee will be put into the first before the end of the week. These two oarsmen are among the best in the freshman class and would have been in the boat from the start but for scholarship conditions. They are reported to have overcome these difficulties at the recent examinations.

MASSACHUSETTS TENNIS SINGLES IN FOURTH ROUND

S. Warland Plays Brilliant Matches Wednesday, but Is Defeated by S. J. Sulloway—The Summary.

Matches in the fourth round of the Massachusetts singles championship lawn tennis tournament are being played on the grass courts of the Longwood Cricket Club this afternoon.

S. Warland, a former Harvard athlete, was the star in the matches played Wednesday afternoon. In the third round he eliminated G. T. Putnam in three sets, but in the fourth round he was defeated by Frank J. Sulloway in a two-set match that was much better than the scores, 6-3, 6-4, indicate.

Another surprise of the second round was the defeat of A. W. Sweetser by Herbert I. Foster in straight sets. The summary:

NOT A MAN REACHES FIRST.

READING, Pa.—Pitcher Northrop of the local Tri-State league team shut out the Lancaster team Wednesday without a hit. Only 27 batters faced him. He did not give a base on balls and not a man reached first during the nine innings. Eight of the Lancaster batters went out on strikes.

STERRETT TO LEAD PRINCETON.

NO LIGHT IS THROWN BY SECRETARY KNOX ON PORTRAIT FUND

WASHINGTON—What became of the extra $1600 which was apparently paid to somebody in connection with the purchase of a portrait of former Secretary Day is no nearer a solution today than before although Secretary Knox was examined on Wednesday by the Hamlin House committee.

As to the voucher signed by Albert Rosenthal, the portrait painter, calling for $2450, of which he got but $850, Mr. Knox could give no new facts. A week ago, Mr. Knox said, Mr. Carr, chief of the consular bureau, brought the voucher and papers to him, saying that they had been found on the floor of Disbursing Clerk Morrison's office.

"You will be interested in another receipt from Mr. Rosenthal that is attached to the papers," said Mr. Knox to the committee. "It was signed Jan. 18, 1904, and is for $790, with a notation that $60 for the frame of Secretary Day's picture had been paid to a Washington picture dealer."

"Where did this second receipt come from?" demanded Mr. Hamlin.

"I found it with the papers; that is all I know of it," said Secretary Knox. The members of the committee found upon examination that it was not actually dated Jan. 18, 1904, but read: "Received Jan. 18, 1904, the sum of $790," with an explanation of the purpose.

"There is no intention to reflect upon you personally, Mr. Secretary," returned the chairman, "but I am strongly of opinion that this was prepared after this inquiry began."

Howard Sangston, the messenger in Disbursing Clerk Morrison's office, said he found the envelope among a lot of crumpled ones by Mr. Morrison's waste basket, about four and one half feet from the latter's desk.

Secretary Knox also told about the payment of $5000 to Senator Hale's son, Frederick Hale, from the Canadian boundary commission fund.

Chairman Hamlin said that the work of Mr. Hale had been a complete failure, but Secretary Knox qualified that by declaring that Mr. Hale's efforts had not resulted in an agreement.

"Some two or three weeks after I became secretary of state," added Secretary Knox, "Chandler Anderson told me that Frederick Hale had sent in his bill and asked me to approve it. The total was $8182.80; but it had been explained to Mr. Hale that there was available only $5000, and I was informed that he preferred accepting that sum to trying to obtain an additional appropriation. The employment was authorized by Mr. Root, while secretary of state."

PAPER CUPS PUT ON ALL TRAINS UNDER NEW LAW

Paper drinking cups were supplied to-day upon the cars of all railroads running out of Boston, the companies thus complying with the new law requiring such provision on all trains running a distance of 30 miles or more out of the city.

The conductors and trainmen are supplied with the paper cups and upon application of the passenger will supply one. On each water cooler a sign directs the passenger to apply for a cup if he so desires.

On the Boston & Maine railroad the company is using a supply already on hand from the coin machines carried on 100 of the cars.

On the New Haven road glasses are also kept on hand in the trains to be placed in the stands in Connecticut, Rhode Island and New York, where the paper cups will not be dispensed.

WOMEN'S TRADE UNION HEARS JOHN GOLDEN TALK FOR SUFFRAGE

John Golden of Fall River, president of the United Textile Workers of America, and member of the Massachusetts commission to consider the minimum wage, told the delegates to the National Women's Trade Union League convention today that he thoroughly believed in women's suffrage as well as their cooperation in the industrial field, and that he was not in favor of abolishing strikes, for the reason that strikes make more apostles to the cause of trade unionism than anything else.

The national league adopted recommendations from the committee on officers' reports that the league work in the interests of woman's suffrage; that each branch league appoint a special committee to instruct the members in regard to equal franchise; that an eight-hour day be everywhere urged; that local boards be appointed to investigate the non-enforcement of laws for the protection of women and minors; that compensation laws be urged; that a study be made of state banking laws; that states be urged to adopt minimum wage laws, and that supervision be exercised over employment agencies.

The committee report on fire protection, recommending that a commission in every league be organized to secure the best fire protection laws, was adopted.

United support of the initiative, referendum and recall, including the recall of judges, was decided upon recommendation of the committee on legislation.

Miss Rose Scheidermann of New York reported for the committee on officers' reports, Miss Leonora Reilly of New York for the committee on fire protection, and Miss Kitty O'Toole of Boston for the committee on legislation.

Mr. Golden in his speech to the delegates praised Mrs. Glendower Evans, who is a member with him on the commission on minimum wage. He extended greeting from the thousands of textile workers in the organization of which he is president.

He declared that it has been only just recently that the men trade unionists have begun to realize what a potent factor in the cause the women are. The leaders are just now seeing the light. There is better cooperation now than ever before. He said he expects to see soon in many states laws prohibiting employers or corporations paying less than a living wage. He said that he told Governor Fox recently that Massachusetts within two years would have the best board of factory inspection in the country.

The action of the trades unions in taking the children out of the factories and placing them in schools, he said, was enough to justify the whole movement.

Mrs. Raymond Robins of Chicago was nominated for reelection. The election will be held Friday.

Other officers nominated were as follows: First vice-president, Mrs. D. W. Knepler; second vice-president, Miss Rose Schneidermann of New York and Mrs. S. Conboy of Boston; secretary, Miss S. M. Franklin of Chicago; treasurer, Miss Melinda Scott of New York. For the executive board the following were nominated, of which six will be chosen Friday: Miss Mabel Gillespie of Boston, Miss Agnes Nestor of Chicago, Mrs. L. Spraggon of St. Louis, Miss Nellie Quick of St. Louis, Miss Leonora O'Reilly of New York, Mrs. George E. Lee of Springfield, Ill., Miss Louise, Mittelstadt of Kansas City, Miss Louise Carey of Baltimore, Miss Pearl McGill of Muscatine, Ia., and Miss Pauline Newman of Philadelphia.

GIFTS TO RADCLIFFE AND HARVARD ARE IN MRS. BARNARD'S WILL

DEDHAM, Mass.—Carrying public bequests of approximately $325,000, the will and two codicils of Lydia Augusta Barnard, widow of James Munson Barnard, were allowed yesterday by Judge James H. Flint of the Norfolk probate court.

All but $86,000 of these bequests goes to Harvard and Radcliffe.

In gifts $200,000 is given outright for public bequests. Later $10,000 through two trust funds of $5000 each will be added and the residue of the estate is given to Harvard University. Individuals will receive $47,000.

Radcliffe College is given $115,000. A bequest of $30,000 represents, according to statements in the will, the property received by Mrs. Barnard from the estate of a sister, Hannah M. Parsons, who was known as Anna Parsons. In perpetuating her memory the will provides that a trust fund be created to be known as the "Anna Parsons scholarship," the net income only to be used for scholarships for women.

For the creation of another trust fund $75,000 is left for the erection of a dormitory to be known as the "James and Augusta Barnard hall," the net income to be used for scholarships to be known as the "James and Augusta Barnard scholarships."

A third fund of $5000 is left to Radcliffe College, the net income to be paid semi-annually to Mrs. Sarah E. Eastman of Randolph, and then to a granddaughter, Miss Augusta C. Eastman of Randolph for life, when the income is to be used for the "James and Augusta Barnard Scholarships."

Another fund of $5000 is left to Radcliffe College in trust, the net income to be for the benefit of Mary B. Brenner, for years in her service, for life, and then to go toward the scholarships under the "James and Augusta Barnard Scholarships."

Under a provision, as expressed by her late husband, $60,000 is left to Harvard University, to be kept separate and distinct, to be known as the "James and Augusta Barnard Law Fund," the net income to be expended for advancement, improvement and study of jurisprudence, legislative administrative and allied subjects in United States and, if deemed advisable, for the purchase of law books.

Harvard University is also left the residue of the estate to be added to this bequest. Just how much this will amount to is mere conjecture, for, while the residue outside of the cash bequests amounts to $105,000, there is to be taken from that the value of the personal property distributed under direction given by Mrs. Barnard previous to her death, which is of unknown quantity.

To the Boston Museum of Fine Arts is left $50,000, the income to promote the use of collections for purposes of education, especially among school pupils and college students.

In addition to these bequests there are the following gifts to various institutions in which Mrs. Barnard was interested: To the Barnard Memorial, Warren street, Boston, $20,000; to the Animal Rescue League of Boston, $5000; to the Tuskegee Institute of Tuskegee, Ala., $2500; to the Normal and Industrial Institute of Harriman, Tenn., $2500; to the Sharon Sanitarium, $5000; to the Channing home, McLean street, Boston, $5000.

There are the following gifts to individuals: To Mrs. Susan L. Barnard of West Newton, Mrs. Mary J. C. Kendall of Cambridge, William D. Conrad of Winchester and Samuel Barnard of West Newton, $5000 each; to Charles B. Darien, James M. Barnard of Savannah, Ga., Frank M. Barnard of Duluth, Minn., Mrs. Sarah B. Barker of West Newton, Mrs. Susan L. Conrad of Winchester and Charles I. Barnard of Paris, France, $3000; to Miss Augusta C. Eastman of Randolph, Miss Augusta B. Barker of West Newton, Miss Mary W. Barnard of Mattapoisett, Miss Sarah L. Barnard of Milton, Miss Olivia V. Bowditch of Boston, Miss Harriet Ware of Milton, Mrs. Francis A. Victor, wife of Dr. Victor of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mrs. Mary B. Ball of Medford and Miss Alice M. Curtis of Boston, $1000 each.

To Susan L. Barnard and Samuel Barnard of West Newton are left all the works of art, china, books, plate, goods and chattels and all the wearing apparel, to be distributed according to the direction given them.

To Samuel Barnard is left certain shares in the Boston Athenaeum, in addition to other gifts.

According to the inventory the estate amounts to $411,000, of which $213,000 is in real estate and $198,000 is in personal property. J. Henry Russell of Cambridge and Samuel Barnard of Newton were appointed executors, with surties for each placed at $800,000.

The will was drawn Jan. 25, 1908, the first codicil on May 18 and the second on Aug. 15, 1909, but the codicils do not in the main change the provisions of the will.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC FINISHING $17,000,000 LINES ACROSS CANADA

Rapid progress in the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway is closing up the gap between the east and west ends of this new transcontinental road, the extension of the Grand Trunk system through central Canada. Many miles of new main track, many stations and bridges and many miles of branch lines are included in the plans for this year, which necessitate the expenditure of $17,000,000.

There will be 619 miles of work undertaken on the branch lines, including the Calgary, Battleford, Melville-Regina, Alberta Coal, Regina-Boundary, Moose Jaw and Prince Albert branches and the Biggar-Calgary line. There will also be laid 286 miles of main line track and 200 miles further grading will be done on the branch lines.

Arrangements are in hand for the erection of 140 station buildings. This is the largest and most expensive year's work that the Grand Trunk Pacific has undertaken. The majority of new branch lines to be constructed will be laid in districts hitherto totally untouched by railroad development. On the main line between Edmonton and the coast, more than 365 miles of steel have been laid. From Edmonton, going west, the line is completed as far as Prairie Creek, which is the entrance to the foothills of the Rockies, and from the coast, working towards the Rockies, 165 miles of track is already in place.

This year the work will be pushed ahead from Prairie Creek fully another 185 miles, while from the west end 100 miles are to be constructed. The Alberta coal branch will tap an entirely new country by running a line, from Bickerton on the main line through the Pacific Pass coal fields, as well as those of the Yellowhead, and provision has been made for 60 miles of it to be constructed this year.

Another entirely new branch will be built between Regina and Moose Jaw, a distance of 49 miles. Besides all this construction work, a vast mileage of grading is to be accounted for, and this will be carried on to the extent of 200 miles on the Regina-Boundary branch and those others which will not be completed.

In addition to the above, the company is erecting some of the largest bridges in the West. Over the Red Deer river, on the Tofield-Calgary branch, an enormous bridge, 220 feet high, is now under construction. Another bridge has just been completed at Prairie creek on the main line. A third is to be constructed further west over the Athabasca river, and another over the Skeena river, which is to be the largest on the Transcontinental.

NEW YORK SAVES $17,784 ON COAL

NEW YORK—A firm stand on the part of the committee on supplies has saved the board of education $18,000, according to a report made at yesterday's meeting. Several weeks ago the committee advertised for bids for 35,000 tons of coal for Brooklyn schools. Five Brooklyn firms responded. The lowest bid was $216,901. Bids were again advertised, with the result that three new firms competed and the low bid was cut to $202,176, a saving of $14,784. Similar savings in Queens resulted in a saving of $3000.

LEGAL RESTRICTIONS ON USE OF FIREWORKS GIVEN OUT BY POLICE

Police Commissioner O'Meara sent out a general order last night saying the rules and regulations governing the use of fireworks on June 17 and July 4 in force last year will again govern.

The ordinance passed by the city council in 1909 said in regard to Charlestown on Bunker Hill day that "it shall be lawful for any person to set off between the hours of 6 a. m. and 7 p. m. 'any kind of fireworks' and between the hours of 7 p. m. and 10 p. m. fireworks for display only, except as hereinafter provided."

The only place fireworks can be set off on Saturday is in Charlestown. The penalty for violation of the law is $100 fine or 30 days' imprisonment, or both.

Chapter 565 of the Acts of 1910, section 1, declares as follows:

Section 1.—It shall be unlawful for any person to sell or keep for sale:

Any blank cartridge, toy pistol, toy gun or toy cannon that can be used to fire a blank cartridge;

Or to sell or keep for sale, or to fire, explode or cause to explode any blank cartridge or bomb;

Or to sell or keep for sale, or to set off, explode or cause to explode any fireworks containing any picric acid or picrates;

Or any firecracker exceeding two inches in length and three eighths of an inch in diameter or a greater explosive power than a firecracker of such size containing black gunpowder only;

Provided, that this section shall not apply

To illuminating fireworks set off between the hours of 7 o'clock in the afternoon and 12 o'clock midnight, excepting those containing picric acid or picrates;

Or to the sale of any article herein named to be shipped directly out of the state;

Or to the sale or use of explosives in the firing of salutes by official authorities;

Or to the sale or use of blank cartridges for a duly licensed show or theater, or for signal purposes in athletic sports;

Or to experiment at a factory for explosives;

Or the firing of salutes with cannon on shore or on boats where a permit has been secured from the chief of the district police, or from some official designated by him for that purpose;

Or to the sale for use, or the use by the militia, or by any organization of war veterans, or in teaching the use of firearms by experts on days other than holidays.

PROSECUTION ASKED ON SENATE FLOOR OF JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER

WASHINGTON—Demanding the prosecution of John D. Rockefeller, Senator Pomerene (Dem., Ohio) arraigned Standard Oil and Tobacco trust officials in the Senate this afternoon.

Mr. Pomerene spoke of his resolution instructing Attorney-General Wickersham to institute criminal proceedings immediately against the man behind the two big trusts.

"The law is no respecter of persons, and the government ought not to be," he said. "The poor and lowly are not above the law and the rich and the strong in combination ought not to be permitted to violate it with impunity."

"No statute was ever more plainly written than the Sherman anti-trust law, or more easily understood by those who want to understand it. Any $100 country lawyer can tell what this law means. It takes a $100,000 lawyer to point out ways to evade its provisions. The vast corporations and their learned counsel do not attempt to square their conduct with the law, but to warp the law to conform to it to their business."

"Prosecutions against these oil and tobacco men should be brought in every district in which there has been a violation of the law in order to teach them that they, too, must obey the law. Is the government now frightened at its own victories?"

Stillwell, Alfred L. Baker, ex-president Chicago Commercial Club; A. E. Willson, James H. Hustis, E. H. Adams and Col. W. D. Sohler.

The more serious speeches were made by President Smith of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, William A. Bond of the Chicago association and Vice-President T. E. Byrnes of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

President Smith said in part: "For eight years the great chambers of commerce and commercial organizations of the world have been meeting in biennial congresses in Europe and dealing with many important questions affecting international trade, the elimination of obstacles to free trade between the civilized countries and the promotion of better relations, tending toward the advancement of the general prosperity of the world."

"One of the primary objects of our coming visit to Europe is to extend a first-hand invitation to the great business organizations of Europe to attend the fifth international congress of chambers of commerce in Boston in 1912."

"Consideration of the organizations of business men abroad impresses upon the minds of all of us interested in the efficiency and further development of our business organizations at home, the perfection of business organizations in Europe which have done so much in the promotion of their commerce and industry, and emphasizes the need of a bigger and better association of business organization in this country in some organization of really national scope."

"If the business men of this country get together in a proper national organization we will begin to have something like a reasonable representation in the consideration of our government finances, and serve in some measure in approximation the growing importance of manufacture in the United States today."

"There may be obstacles to the solution of some of the problems involved in an undertaking of this character, but as business men it does not seem to me conceivable that if we approach the question with an appreciation of its importance and a determination to apply business sense and judgment in the consideration of it we can fail to evolve in the United States a national association which will compare in every respect with the great national organizations of Europe and represent a source of pride and power for good in all parts of the United States."

"We believe that there should be one such association, and that it should represent the united opinions of the business organizations of the country."

LEGISLATORS PLAN TO FORCE REPORTS ON APPROPRIATION BILLS

Inbound and outbound steamers are sailing vessels fairly filled the harbor today. In addition to seven foreign boats a number of tugs and barges came in. Customs officials were kept busy in the morning boarding the foreign liners. The White Star liner, Zealand headed the procession and was closely followed by the German steamer Bulgaria of the Hamburg-American line from Hamburg. She dropped anchor off East Boston with a general cargo of 9500 tons. Following the Bulgaria came the Panamanian steamer Banes from Sama, Cuba, with a large cargo of bananas, which is being discharged at Commercial wharf. Before going to Cuba to load for Boston she carried 18,000 pieces of dynamite from Philadelphia to Colon for use on the Panama canal.

Only one man was left of the original crew which manned the full-rigged British ship Erne, which arrived from Buenos Aires today. Captain Fickett reported that 12 of the crew deserted the ship at Buenos Aires. The vessel occupied 49 days on her passage, including a call at the Barbadoes for orders. She came in ballast and will load a cargo of 1,500,000 feet of lumber at Mystic docks which will be taken to the River Platte.

Arriving from Jamaican ports, the steamship Hittolyte Dumeon of the United Fruit Company's fleet, Captain Danielson, brought a cargo of 19,000 bunches of bananas and 142 bags of coconuts. Longshoremen began to discharge her cargo immediately and she

the largest attended and the most significant in content of any that have ever been held," continued Mr. Carstens. "There were 1632 delegates in attendance, representing all the state and territories and several foreign countries. The New England states furnished 593 delegates."

"There is a noticeable gain among laboring men, especially those belonging to trade unions, and the gain in the closeness of relation between the church and social work is striking."

Judge Julian W. Mack of Washington, the new president, presided at the closing meeting held in Ford hall Wednesday evening. He was received with hearty acclaim by the assembly. A resolution commending international arbitration was unanimously adopted.

Shortly before noon the Wilson & Furness Leyland line steamer Cambrian, Captain Gardiner, pushed up the harbor with 3800 tons of general cargo. Otto Prine, a stowaway, was detained by the immigration officials for further examination. He said he was bound for Portland, Ore.

TRANSIT QUESTIONS SEPARATED IN PLAN OF SENATOR TINKHAM

Two bills separating the issues contained in the Boston Elevated omnibus bill so that the Elevated-West End proposition may be considered apart from the other transportation projects have been filed by Senator George Holden Tinkham with the clerk of the Senate. It is Mr. Tinkham's purpose to ask that the two new bills be substituted for the omnibus bill when the latter comes up for consideration Monday.

In a statement made public today explaining his reason for desiring substitution Senator Tinkham says that the omnibus bill contains two separate questions which should be considered apart and upon their own merits, one relating to the unification of the West End and Elevated systems and the other to subways and tunnels and the contracts for their use.

Relative to his two bills the senator says:

"The first provides for the consolidation of the West End and the Elevated without any increase in dividends to the West End stockholders. It conforms substantially to the recommendations of the Chamber of Commerce and the recommendations previously made by Chairman Hall, Chairman Crocker and Horace G. Allen of the joint board, and provides that the stockholders shall vote definitely upon consolidation on this basis prior to Oct. 31, 1911. No such vote has ever before been taken. If deemed advisable, a provision increasing the security of the West End stockholders after consolidation can easily be inserted."

"The second provides for the construction of the new subways and tunnels and for the extension of the existing leases. It provides for the expiration of all the leases upon the uniform date, 1936, as recommended by Corporation Counsel Babson; and conforms to the established policy of the state by granting the Elevated no exclusive contract rights in the subways and tunnels extending beyond a period of 25 years. A provision has also been inserted for the protection of the trees on Boston Common."

"The second act will go into effect upon its acceptance by the Elevated and by the voters of Boston, in accordance with the precedent established in the Washington street tunnel act of 1902. The construction of the Boylston street subway, which is but a substitute for a subway to which the Elevated is already committed by law, will begin immediately thereafter. Plans for the Dorchester tunnel and the East Boston tunnel extension will be made as soon as the act passes, but the construction of these structures will not begin nor will any extension of existing leases take effect until the consolidation of the West End and the Elevated is accomplished."

"If the stockholders fail to vote in favor of this consolidation prior to Oct. 31, however, the next Legislature will have ample notice so that coercive or other measures can, if necessary, be taken early in the session to bring such consolidation about. No unreasonable delay in constructing the new subways and tunnels need, therefore, take place."

"The omnibus measure proposes an extension of the West End lease instead of consolidation. Such an extension is not favored by the joint board, and has been opposed by the Chamber of Commerce and by the West End protective committee. It is generally agreed that consolidation is far better than an extension of the lease. The omnibus measure, moreover, allows one year after its passage for the acceptance of this extension, and if such acceptance is not secured the whole act, subways and all, becomes null and void."

"Inasmuch as the next Legislature will, in all probability adjourn before the expiration of this one year period, it can easily be seen that the omnibus measure is very likely to postpone all transportation improvements until after 1913, especially since the spokesmen of the West End stockholders have already declared their hostility to an extension of the lease. In this report, as well as in others, the substitute bill is vastly superior."

"Doubtless improvements on these substitute bills can be suggested, but they separate the issues and are offered at this time as a ground-work for constructive action."

Much opposition appears to have developed to the provision in the omnibus bill practically extending the lease of the West End to the Elevated for a period of from 42 to 50 years. Among the public officials who are said to have registered their disapproval of this provision are Mayor Herbert P. Wagsatt of Everett, William E. McClintock, chairman of the Chelsea board of control; Andrew A. Casassa, a member of the Revere board of selectmen; William Gray, secretary of the Cambridge Board of Trade; P. S. Cunniff, a member of the Watertown board of selectmen, and Alderman Arthur W. Blakemore of Newton.

SAUNDERS MILK ACT STANDS AFTER FINAL EFFORT TO REPEAL

An attempt to substitute the bill repealing the Saunders milk transportation act of last year for an adverse committee report on the measure failed in the Senate late Wednesday by a vote of 24 to 14.

Senator Schoonmaker made the motion to substitute; saying that the act had proved a great hardship to many farmers, as it increased the cost of transportation in some instances as much as two cents per can. Senators Mellen and Hoar disputed this point.

The bill limiting personal campaign expenses to $25 per 1000 votes and in other ways amending the corrupt practices act was ordered to a third reading without debate.

On motion of Senator Ross the Senate substituted for an adverse committee report a resolve to provide for the appointment of a commission to investigate the matter of conciliation and arbitration in the commonwealth. The matter was referred to the committee on ways and means.

On motion of Senator Grainger, by a vote of 21 to 16, the Boston Chelsea annexation bill was postponed a week. The bill passed the House by a large majority, but Senator Grainger said he wanted time to ascertain the feeling of his district in regard to it.

The committee on ways and means reported "no legislation necessary" on Governor Foss's messages relative to the offices of the bank commissioner and the director of the bureau of statistics. With these reports the committee files explanations.

With respect to the office of the bank commissioner, the committee states that the commissioner has already adopted the Governor's recommendation relative to the use of time sheets covering the time of examiners; his second recommendation relative to the use of time of examiners; his second recommendation related to the manner in which vacations are granted to state employees, and the committee finds legislation unnecessary because of another message of the Governor.

The committee also agrees with the Governor's expert in his report on the bureau of statistics, in which he says the amount of money which the bureau is costing the commonwealth is fully justified.

B. & M. ABSORPTION OF THE REVERE BEACH ROAD IS INDORSED

Announcement was made at the State House today that the sub-committee of the committee on railroads, which was placed in charge of President Mellen's petition for the acquisition of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn railroad, by the Boston & Maine and New Haven system, had voted to report favorably on the proposition to the full committee.

The report of the sub-committee is expected to have much weight with the other members of the railroad committee and the consensus of opinion among those interested in the measure at the State House, seems to be that a like report will be made to the Legislature by the full committee.

The petition is accompanied by a bill drawn by officials of the New Haven road, providing for a tunnel under the harbor, connecting South Boston with East Boston. It is planned to run trains from South Boston through the tunnel to the Boston & Maine tracks near the Hoosac tunnel docks, and from this line to the narrow Gauge line near Orient Heights. The bill provides further for the making of the Revere beach line standard gauge and electrifying it.

FASHIONS AND THE HOUSEHOLD

GIRL'S FROCK MADE OF FOULARD

Banded with plain messaline and embroidery.

YOUNG girls are wearing a great many semi-princess dresses this season. This one is charmingly youthful in effect and will be found equally well adapted to washable materials, to foulards and to other simple silks. In the illustration it is made of foulard banded with plain messaline and embroidery. It will be just as effective made from linen, however, and it is equally well suited to the still simpler lawns and batistes and materials of the kind.

The party low neck and the short sleeves are pretty and smart, but the dress can be made with high neck and long sleeves if preferred. The five-gored skirt is plaited. The blouse is laid in plaits over the shoulders and the two are joined by means of a belt, then joined to the panel. The plaits are stitched flat over the hips and are pressed flat so that they give no sense of bulk.

Such a model can be made available in numberless ways. Treated just as illustrated, it is adapted to afternoon wear. Made from linen or from batiste or any similar material and with high neck and long sleeves it becomes suited to morning occasions. When the yoke is added it can be made of any pretty all-over material and it can be made either with short or long sleeves. The model is an excellent one for small women as well as for young girls.

For the 10-year size will be required 11 yards of material 27 inches wide, seven yards 36, or six yards 44 inches wide, with 1½ yards of contrasting material 27 inches wide and 1¼ yards of banding for the trimming; for the yoke and collar will be needed three eighths yard 18 inches wide.

A pattern (6587), in sizes for misses of 16 and 18 years of age, and small women, can be had at any May Manton agency, or will be sent by mail. Address 132 East Twenty-third street, New York, or Masonic Temple, Chicago.

LOOKING BEYOND DAILY TASKS

Some things for the consideration of brides.

A COMMONPLACE, monotonous existence you find it? Just cooking and washing dishes three times a day, and making beds and dusting and sweeping, and then doing the same thing over again the next day? Maybe it is monotonous, but look—

What do you see from your kitchen window? Just your own backyard with its dingy fence and the semi-squalid houses near you? Or do you look beyond—where the blue sky meets the hills and fields fresh and green?

If you see only your own yard and your neighbors' yards and houses, and do not look at the panorama of earth and sky in the distance, you are missing the best part of your view—the most important part, because it is infinitely the biggest part, says the Chicago Record-Herald.

In the same way, if you sense only the daily grind of housework, and miss the great meaning back of it all, if you simply consider yourself a household drudge, and do not realize your possibilities, you are taking a very narrow view; you are letting much power lie dormant within you, and you are losing much success and joy that might be yours.

It is a fine thing to be practical and matter-of-fact, to be able to cook three square meals a day, keep the house in order, and make both ends meet. But it is well to look beyond the daily task—and think and plan and hope and resolve.

If the average bride could realize her potentiality, her married days would be vastly bettered. She has, in the first place, an incalculable influence upon her husband's career. Unless he be a ruthless genius, to whom his wife and all else in the world are mere incidents as compared to his work and purpose, his wife will, whether she so intends or not, exercise a deep influence upon him. Nor does she need to be domineering in order to do this; for her husband's sake and her own it is better that he and she close jointly. But, living together in the close relationship of marriage, husband and wife cannot but mold each other's characters. Unwittingly the one with the stronger personality draws the other up or down to his or her level. Unknowningly, each influences the other in various directions. With or without design, the wife helps her husband become a success or a failure, and he helps her in the same way.

If she is high minded, he will unconsciously imitate many of her ideals. Her ambition will inspire him, and her courage with him and confidence in him will strengthen him. She is his true helpmeet.

However humble her home may be, the wife may make it the most blessed spot on earth to herself and husband, and to others a place that radiates good cheer, high ideals, hospitality, kindness and refinement. A home should be more than a place to eat and sleep. Its influence to all who know it should be beneficial.

By and by there will come a child or children into the home. The bride will have become a connecting link in nature's chain of eternity. In this, the greatest position that a human being can occupy, how important it is that she realize her responsibility.

Washing dishes and sweeping—a commonplace, monotonous existence, you said? No, little new wife, before you are vast possibilities, large responsibilities, and, if you fulfill them well, there will be bountiful rewards.

While you are washing your dishes, and after they are done, all the time remember your destiny. Remember it so that every thought and act may be the best of which you are capable, for each little thought and act has its influence upon the broader activities. The better and finer woman you are, the more successful wife and homemaker you will be.

WORK FOR GUESTS

A hostess who entertains a great many young people has found that her guests feel more at home when they have something to do about the house. So she states that they are at liberty to gather and arrange flowers from her beautiful gardens, and for this work she has provided every possible convenience, says the New York Tribune.

In a small porch overlooking the water is a long, high wooden table covered with copper. On one end of it is an assortment of vases, jars, jugs, bowls and glass-lined baskets of artistic shapes and colors, and near by is a large brown wicker hamper into which the debris goes.

For gathering the flowers there are leather-lined wicker baskets and garden shears. With all these conveniences—no suitable vase to be looked up, no water to carry, no disorder to be cleaned up—arranging flowers in this house is a pure poetic joy.

CLOTHES TO WEAR AT A RESORT

Most appropriate things, also, for European trip.

THE woman who travels will tell you that it is more trouble to prepare a wardrobe for a nearby resort than it is to get something to wear to Europe. It is amazing how well the clothes we have fit in with the demands of European traveling.

When one goes to an American resort it is impossible to wear the clothes that served through the winter. We want plenty of linen skirts and blouses, one or more lightweight suits, wash muslins, one-piece silk frocks, two kinds of topcoats, and all the thin filmy things for evening and afternoon that we can pack into the trunk.

One has carefully to take into consideration the climate where one is going before arranging clothes, but it would be safe to take duck skirts and shirt waists to almost any resort. These have been made possible for even the cold atmosphere of the New England coast by the smart-looking sweaters and even better looking topcoats which women have brought into fashion.

It is wise to have both the sweater and the coat, writes Anne Rittenhouse in the New York Times. The best sweaters are cut off at the hips, are quite straight under the arms, fasten single breasted with white pearl buttons, have small sleeves, and at least two pockets. Both brown and gray are popular, but they do not have the dainty air of the all-white garment, and they lend a drab tone to a white costume that is not artistic. Young girls can wear the king's blue and scarlet sweaters, as well as the

TRIED RECIPES

LANCASHIRE PUDDING.

TAKE gold cooked beef or veal, chop and season as for hash; have ready hot mashed potatoes seasoned as if for the table, and put into a shallow baking dish first a layer of meat, then a layer of potatoes, and so on until the dish is heaping full; smooth over the top of the potatoes and make little holes in which place pieces of butter; bake until a nice brown.

ENGLISH BIRD'S NEST PUDDING.

Select good, sound apples, peel and core them, and boil until they begin to soften; then place them in a pudding dish. Fill the center of each apple with a few raisins, a clove, a little sugar and a small piece of butter on top. Slice two apples in thin strips, place these and some raisins round the apples in the dish, pour a custard over all, to fill the dish, and bake until the custard is set and apples are quite soft.

MARSHMALLOW PUDDING.

One half pound marshmallows cut into small pieces, one pound walnuts, chopped or ground fine; mix together in dish to be served in; add enough milk to moisten (one half to three quarters of a cup.) Soak half a day, or over night, and when ready to serve pour half pint cream, whipped and flavored, on top.

MARSHMALLOW FROSTING.

One cup of sugar, enough water to cover sugar, and boil until it strings. Add one fourth pound marshmallows and white of one egg beaten stiff.

ECONOMICAL FRUIT PUDDING.

Any kind of canned or stewed dried fruit may be used. Heat in a granite pan or Kettle, add sugar to taste and water if not quite juicy. Thicken with a tablespoonful of corn starch, stirred smooth in a little cold water. Pour over thin slices of dry bread or cake. Serve cold, with cream.

FRUIT PUDDING.

Have ready four cups of chopped fruit—using raisins, citron, currants, figs and candied cherries. Sprinkle some of this fruit on the bottom of the mold, then put in a layer of finely grated bread crumbs; shake over this spices—cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg—then fruit again, then crumbs and spice till the mold is nearly full. Make a custard of a quart of milk, five eggs, a pinch of salt, two ounces of melted butter and the juice of one lemon; pour this over the pudding and let it stand for one hour. Then cover the mold tightly and steam it for about two hours. Unmold and serve with a cream sauce or with a custard.—Portland Express and Advertiser.

MODES IN BRIEF

White ratine is being used on silk suits. A droll model of blue silk serge had a large shawl collar and deep cuffs of this material. A narrow edge of black velvet edged them.

Cerise and blue are combined on many hats. Black-and-white hats continue to be worn with no diminution in favor.

A crown of panies seems to be the new idea of the New Soeurs. This was used on a large blue hemp shape and was shown with a gorgeous blue and mauve afternoon dress of silk voile.

The parasols are of gayly colored silks and chiffon, says the Paris correspondent of the New York Press.

Many skirts show a slashed effect at the side over an underskirt of contrasting color.

Sailor collars of satin or silk are now veiled with black or white chiffon.

CHICKENS HELPED IN GARDEN

Destroyed insects and found shelter for themselves.

LAST summer I visited a farm where about 30 White Wyandotte fowls are kept throughout the year, and where about 150 chicks were raised for home use, writes M. G. Kains in Orange Judd Farmer. The most interesting thing about the poultry was the fact that the fowls were not confined to yards, nor was the garden fenced off to keep the birds from scratching in it. This is the common practice on farms, but usually there is considerable complaint that the fowls injure the garden. Only trifling damage was done by the fowls mentioned.

The older fowls were not sufficiently numerous to do much harm in the garden of about half an acre, especially while some of them were sitting or were in charge of their broods. The poultry-houses were situated less than 100 feet from the garden, but there was so much space for the fowls to roam over that they seemed almost to avoid the garden. The broods were kept in coops and runs until the chicks were fairly well feathered, although after they were two or three weeks old they were allowed out in the afternoons, but each night were brought back to their coops and protected from possible visitations of prowlers.

After the chicks were about four weeks old they had longer periods of freedom, and as their runs were situated close to the garden they ran about this place for the greater part of the day. Most of the chicks were hatched prior to May 1, so that the crops were fairly well established before being visited by the chicks. From the very first the chicks made a business of devouring insects, and it was not necessary for the farmer to practise the ordinary methods of insect control, because the chicks relieved him of all this trouble.

One distinct advantage that the chicks gained by being in the garden was that the larger plants supplied shade during the hot weather. The most appreciated shade was that afforded by the large asparagus bed. Here the chicks would retire to rest, especially in the warm hours of the day. As the asparagus bed was well managed, the plants made a rather dense covering soon after cutting had been stopped. This covering was just the kind of protection needed by the chicks to prevent hawks and other birds of prey from seeing or reaching them.

The result of the ordinary care given the young flock was that a very large percentage of the chicks reached maturity. As to the garden, when I saw it in late summer it looked especially thrifty, the plants were exceptionally free from indications of insect attacks, and the owner was well pleased, not only with the garden, but the double crop of vegetable and animal food for the family raised on the one area. The garden was made to supply a very considerable portion of the chicks' feeds, and as this supply was mainly of bugs, the advantage was all the greater.

WAYS OF LESSENING THE WORK

Simple furnishings make it easier to keep clean.

MANY women know if the days were twice as long as they now are, and that if they worked during this entire time, there would be something undone at the end of the day, says the Toronto Mail and Empire. But when they stop to consider how many unnecessary tasks they perform, how much time they expend in doing things that add almost nothing to the real comfort of the house, they will realize that they might omit some of their self-imposed duties and leave more time for other interests.

To simplify housekeeping, a woman must begin with the house. And she must consider the labor that is expended in merely keeping clean the walls, floors and woodwork. Linoleum looks well, even in the dining room, for it comes in pretty hardwood patterns and can scarcely be distinguished from it. With a rug under the table that can be frequently taken out and shaken, the floor will make a far better appearance than when covered with tacked-down carpets or matting which collects quantities of dust.

Bare or linoleum-covered floors are easily cleaned, and if they are swept with a hair broom every day, then wiped with a soft cloth or bag-covered broom, they will seldom need more thorough treatment. This broom-bag is most certainly the invention of some thrifty housewife. One width of colored outing flannel 17 inches wide makes the bag proper.

This is sewed up like a pillow case and lined with heavy muslin to within eight inches of the top. The bottom is finished with a very full ruffle five inches wide. The ruffle is made of the flannel doubled, and it is stitched in with the bottom seam of the bag. The side seam is left open as far down as the lining, and in the top hem is run a piece of tape, by which the bag may be drawn together and tied to the broom. The rule is the finishing touch that makes the bag so very useful, for it whisks into corners and crevices that the broom cannot reach.

Hardwood and stained floors should be oiled occasionally, and the painted and linoleum-covered ones need wiping off with a soft cloth dipped in clear, warm water; but there need be no hard weekly scrubbing and sweeping of heavy carpets. White woodwork, while adding to the daintiness of a house, also adds to the care of the housekeeper. Every finger mark sullies it. People will not use only the knob in opening and closing the doors, consequently a white door soon bears the imprint of many hands and must be constantly washed. It is the same with window sills and window frames. Unpainted, varnished woodwork does not absorb dust or dirt, and the natural grain of the wood brought out by the varnish is sometimes very beautiful.

SUMMER PRUNING NECESSARY

Buds and shoots rubbed off with thumb.

SUMMER pruning is as necessary in the training of trees and vines as winter pruning. It preserves the general improvement established by winter pruning. Peach, apple, pear, plum, etc., derive the chief benefit from it while the trees are young. The grape, however, demands some attention of this kind each year of its life, says a writer in the Garden Magazine.

Summer pruning is accomplished by rubbing off buds, shoots and superfluous fruits with the thumb and finger. This does not bruise or mutilate the surrounding bark, and the juices of the plant are not wasted but at once begin their work of healing. In some instances where shoots have been removed, the process may have to be repeated to remove growth arising from superfluous buds. Only the tender shoots can be removed in this way, however, as wood that has hardened is too rigid and too closely connected with the sap flow of the tree to be removed until after the growing season.

Summer pruning ought to begin with early growth in May and continue until late in the summer as occasion requires. The nature of the plant's growth must be considered in each instance. Blackberries, whose rampant growth produces long canes, are made to give a better fruit yield by simply pinching the tip of each cane at the desired height and also the tips of the upper branches. In the case of the quince, however, which fruits from the terminal bud, this treatment would diminish the crop of fruit. Apples, pears, plums, and peaches bear fruit laterally.

The summer pruning of the grapes consists in removing buds below the arms and superfluous buds along the arms supporting the fruiting canes. In the case of young vines, all fruit clusters are removed from one-year old vines, one cluster is allowed to remain on each cane of the two-year old vines, and two on each cane of the three-year old vines. Prune by pinching out the tiny cluster, leaving the surrounding leaves. In the case of the one-year-old vines these may be removed while yet in the blossom, but in older vines they are allowed to develop to well-defined berries before pinching.

The young peach and plum trees need to be looked after as they have a tendency to send out shoots along the trunk. As soon as these shoots announce their coming by tiny leaves, rub them off.

Certain varieties of plum, peach and pear require a careful thinning of fruit as well. For this, wait until the set is established and has withstood one or two good winds; then go to work with a pole having a short hook or two wire prongs, and thin out the fruit to what the tree can mature. In this process give the tool an upward rather than a downward motion so as not to skin the tree.

HOME HELPS

Any one having evergreen trees—cedar, pine, spruce, or almost any variety—will find a small branch or few twigs effective for polishing flatirons.

If chicken fat is added to the lard in which one fries doughnuts, the flavor will be much improved.

Save all the lemon hulls, drop them into the vessel in which you boil your tea towels and it will whiten them wonderfully, and there will be a clean freshness about them that is desirable.

Sew the skirt binding on the hem of your skirt before you press it, says an exchange. Pressing the goods flattens it, and it becomes difficult to tell the braid on a thin fabric without stitching through it.

FANS OF TULLE

Of Great Interest to Advertisers Is the Length of Life of Advertising Mediums

A publication possesses the power to keep itself alive and before a reading public by two principal means:

THE VARIETY OF INTERESTING READING MATTER AND THE ATTRACTIVENESS OF ITS MECHANICAL PRESENTATION

In both these respects the Monitor is strong. Its reading matter is 100% good and its composition and printing tasteful and attractive.

More and more are farseeing advertisers learning that the Monitor reaches a distinctive, widely spread reading clientele of great purchasing power.

FINE ROCKEFELLER GARDENS

Beautiful floral effects on Pocantico Hills estate.

THANKS to the founder of the Standard Oil Company, a work has just been completed which sets a new standard for a certain kind of American achievement, says Munsey's Magazine. It is embodied in a group of gardens which have been created at Pocantico Hills, the great Rockefeller estate in Westchester county, New York. Three years ago the first earth was turned up. At that time, the acreage which now blooms in a profusion of old world and new world garden beauty was almost a barren hillside. Although hundreds of men have been employed at various times, not the slightest publicity was given to the undertaking.

The landscape of the region has a distinct charm. It is hilly and wooded, and from the heights there is always the view of the Hudson river.

These gardens cannot be compared with any of the famous gardens of Europe, because they are literally brand new. They were reared out of the bare ground, just as a house is shot up from an excavation. When the architect started his work, he had before him a rocky and uneven surface somewhat like an inverted oyster shell, with a big baffle here and there.

If you pick out any one general idea behind the project, it must be termed American in its sense of compactness and comfort. There are many evidences, however, of English, French, Italian and even Japanese influence.

As you drive out from Tarrytown you are scarcely prepared for the exquisite beauty that is so soon to reveal itself. The road up the hill from the public highway skirts the Kent house, formerly occupied by Mr. Rockefeller. As you climb higher you see a small forest of rhododendrons, with here and there a brook shining through. The great peaked roof of the house dominates the landscape.

Suddenly, at a bend in the road, you come upon an imposing, yet graceful, entrance. In front of you is a superb grained iron gateway, Italian in design, and with its shining black relieved here and there by a touch of gold. A high iron fence, of similar detail, surrounds the place.

Just across the road, and facing the main entrance, is a charming exedra fountain of marble. This is supplied with water from the mouths of three carved stone masks. The central face is that of a smiling girl; the other two are men, one of whom is grinning, while the other scowls. Flanking the fountain are stately marble panels, with lovely marble urns for top-pieces, and marble seats for bases.

Every waterfall, brook and fountain is electrically equipped, and in some instances with colored globes. With the road lights glowing in their yellow globes, and the Japanese lanterns illuminated, the whole effect is most picturesque and striking. This electrical treatment is practically new in landscape gardening, and involved many problems in wiring.

CURRANT JELLY

To make currant jelly, free the currants from leaves and the larger stems. Put them in a preserving kettle, crush gently and heat slowly, stirring occasionally. When the currants are hot, crush with a vegetable masher. Turn the crushed fruit and juice into a jelly bag and let it drain as long as it drips, but do not squeeze. The process may be hastened by taking the corners of the bag or cheesecloth and lifting so as to move the contents from side to side. Measure the juice and return to a clean preserving kettle. Under ordinary conditions for every pint of juice should be taken a pint of granulated sugar. Heat the juice and add the sugar to it, heated. Stir the juice until the sugar is dissolved. Cool and skim and put in glasses.

PAPER TRUST MAKES DEFEAT OF THE ROOT AMENDMENT CERTAIN

WASHINGTON—The refusal of the International Paper Company to furnish information asked by Senator Penrose as chairman of the finance committee has insured the defeat of the Root amendment in the interests of the paper manufacturers to the Canadian reciprocity bill.

Friends of the measure say that there has been a gain of six votes, giving a majority of 31, more even than is claimed for the passage of the bill.

The International Paper Company refused to furnish information Senator Penrose had asked respecting the purchase price of the properties merged into the international company, and whether paid for in cash, bonds or otherwise.

The company, through its representative, Chester W. Lyman, says there are several reasons for its refusal: First, because it has not appeared before the present finance committee, and, second, "there are business reasons, entirely aside from the purposes of your investigation, which would make us unwilling to publish broadcast some of the facts asked for."

In addition to listening to speeches by Senators Curtis of Kansas and McCumber of North Dakota in opposition to the measure Wednesday the Senate made the bill the unfinished business on the calendar and without opposition changed the daily hour of meeting from 2 to 12 o'clock noon.

Senator Bristow introduced an amendment reducing the sugar duty. His amendment would strike out the Dutch standard provision of the present law and remove the differential between raw and refined sugar. Mr. Bristow expressed confidence that the amendment would receive a considerable vote.

Senator Nelson follows today with a speech in opposition to reciprocity.

After a conference with President Taft at the White House, Mr. Underwood declared he thought the Root amendment would not be adopted by the Senate.

Mr. McCumber and Mr. Curtis both discussed the agreement from the standpoint of the American farmer. They said the measure gave the Canadian farmer an invaluable opening into a field heretofore exclusively belonging to the American agriculturist.

The loss of the home market which they predicted for the American farmer would in their opinion make it hereafter impossible for the farmers to extend their land development and in the end made their livelihood impossible.

Senator Gore of Oklahoma rose with a document in his hand which he described as the speech of Mr. Sexsmith, M. P., from the province of Ontario. According to Mr. Gore, Mr. Sexsmith, speaking from the Canadian point of view, had forecast for the Canadian farmer as a result of reciprocity exactly the destruction Mr. McCumber and Mr. Curtis were predicting for American farmers.

Then amid the smiles of his colleagues Mr. Gore sent the speech to the secretary's table.

After Mr. Root at Home

ALBANY, N. Y.—Calling upon Senator Root to withdraw his amendment to the Canadian reciprocity bill, pending in Washington, and declaring that New York should be the last state to interfere with the adoption of the treaty, a resolution was presented to the Senate on Wednesday. It was introduced by Senator McClelland, Democrat, of New York. It was, according to the custom, put over for debate at some future time.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Members of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, in session here, adopted resolutions urging senators from southern states to vote for the Canadian reciprocity measure now before the Senate.

OTTAWA, Ont.—Whidden Graham of the firm of Allen & Graham, anti-reciprocity publicity firm of 11 William street, New York city, writes a letter to the Montreal Star warning the Canadian people that in reciprocity is a conspiracy on the part of American newspapers, which want cheap print paper, and a plot by which President Taft seeks to bring about the annexation of Canada.

UNITED IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION FAVORS GOVERNOR'S TAX PLAN

Resolutions favoring the proposed amendments of Governor Foss to the present system of taxation were presented today to the joint committee of constitutional amendments and taxation by Benjamin C. Lane on behalf of the United Improvement Association.

Mr. Lane, in reply to a question by the committee, said that he believed that the tendency of the times is toward taxation of real estate, franchises and other tangible property rather than the taxation of incomes. As a substitute for taxing personal property he recommended the taxation of the incomes derived therefrom, which he thought would add considerably to the state's treasury. In reply to a further question, Mr. Lane said that he did not favor a uniform rate of income tax.

Maj. Henry Winn of Malden presented a resolution that the General Court may provide for the taxation of the whole or any part of the taxable personal property at a rate uniform throughout the commonwealth, which shall be substantially the same as the average rate at which all real estate is assessed in the year of the imposition of such tax or the year last preceding.

WORK OF UNCOVERING WRECK OF THE MAINE RESUMED AT HAVANA

HAVANA, Cuba—Removal of water from the cofferdam inclosing the wreck of the battleship Maine was resumed today and will be carried to a point low enough to uncover portions of the vessel submerged for 13 years, including a part of the section immediately affected by the explosion.

This was determined after a consultation Wednesday between General Bixbee and Colonel Black and Colonel Patrick, after an examination of the work. The officers are fully satisfied that the stability of the cofferdam warrants them in proceeding with the pumping operations.

This morning the most powerful pumps were put to work with the object of reducing the level during the day to 10 feet, which will permit partial exploration of the upper part of the after-section from the stern to immediately forward of the engine room space, where the explosion severed the forward section, including the 10-inch turret on the starboard side.

All this latter portion of the vessel is submerged many feet in excess of the afterpart and probably will not be revealed until the dam is completely emptied and a great quantity of mud has been excavated.

Colonel Patrick said Wednesday that the board believed it wholly feasible to separate the after two-thirds of the ship from the forward third, severing the parts shattered by the explosion by the use of blasts. On the completion of the separation of the parts it is intended to dissect the forward section into portable fragments, which will be taken out. After that, in default of further orders from Congress, it is the intention to build a bulkhead across the rear section, float it out from the dam, bring it alongside a wharf in the harbor, make a complete examination and finally tow it to sea and sink it.

REVOLUTION IN PORTUGAL SAID TO HAVE BEGUN

LONDON—The threatened monarchist revolution in Portugal is now under way, according to Madrid despatches to the Exchange Telegraph.

The garrison at Chaves, near the northern frontier, mutinied and killed the commander, the despatches say. At Braga, held the weakest point on the frontier in northwestern Portugal, monarchist groups sacked the office of the Republican newspaper and are now in control of the town.

Lisbon despatches say that the government has rushed troops to the affected sections and is hopeful of forestalling any serious uprising.

Captain Couchoe and Commander Couchoe are leading the monarchist movement near Braga, only a few miles from the Spanish border.

VIGO, Spain—Reports of the mutiny of two regiments of Portuguese troops are not confirmed and it is said here the royalist plans did not develop as expected.

CHANGES IN HARVARD COMMENCEMENT ARE PROPOSED FOR 1912

A new plan for commencement at Harvard which, if adopted, will be effective in 1912, has been announced by Dean Briggs, chairman of the committee of deans. It was prepared in compliance with a number of requests received during the last few years to have the commencement exercises of the university within a week.

Many graduates objected to spending part of two weeks at the exercises and the new plan will permit them to save time by grouping all the events in one week. It will bring commencement day six days earlier than usual and Harvard and Yale will have the same day for their exercises. By this arrangement the boat race will take place a week earlier than formerly.

Monday will be Phi Beta Kappa day and on Monday evening the academic distinctions will be awarded in Sanders theater while the senior spread is being held in Memorial hall.

Class day will fall on Tuesday and Wednesday will be given up to the celebrations of the professional schools and alumni class reunions.

Thursday will be devoted to commencement exercises.

These changes will cause the commencement weeks of Harvard and Yale to coincide, and it is thought that much of the trouble which has arisen about the boat race and baseball dates in the past will be overcome by the new program. The first baseball game is now played at Yale on Tuesday of the Yale commencement week, and will undoubtedly continue to be played on that day, although Harvard would prefer to have it played at Cambridge on Monday.

The second game will undoubtedly come on Thursday at Harvard, and the third game, if necessary, will be played on Saturday, as in former years. This bunching of the games will cause considerable dissatisfaction among the baseball coaches when a team has but one good pitcher, but it is the best arrangement that could be made under the new plan.

Friday is the day on which Harvard plans to have the boat race rowed, as it will be the day after commencement and will be the closing event of the week unless there is a third baseball game. These dates, however, are by no means settled and will have to be arranged and agreed upon by the athletic associations of the two colleges.

These changes would cause the closing of Harvard three days earlier than usual and to offset this shortening of the college year the fall term would begin three days earlier. Commencement could not be given a place in the schedule before Thursday, because of the time required for returning the marks of the seniors who are candidates for degrees.

SURF SPORT SEASON IS BEGUN AS REVERE BATHHOUSE OPENS

The season of bathing at the state baths is opened. The metropolitan park commission formally declared the bathing facilities of Revere beach available to the public today and any one who wishes to have a plunge in the salt waters of the Atlantic under the auspices of the commonwealth may take it. July 1 is the date set for the opening of the state baths at Nantasket and Nahant.

There has been practically no money spent this year on the bathhouses. It was stated today, however, at the office of the commission that as the number of bathers is larger each year additions and alterations will probably be necessary.

NEW MASONIC HOME AT CHARLTON NEARLY READY FOR GUESTS

The Massachusetts Masonic home at Charlton will soon be ready for the accommodation of guests, according to the report of the board of relief presented to the grand lodge by Grand Secretary Davis at its quarterly communication in the temple yesterday afternoon.

Rules for admission to the home have been adopted and forms of application are nearly ready. All the charges pertaining to the improvements have been met and a substantial balance is on hand. $150,828, which exceeds by $15,000 the amount named in the previous report. Added to this is more than $30,000 in pledges.

The board stated that it was under the greatest obligations to the women who had enlisted in the cause through the auxiliaries, and suitable recognition would be made of their efforts. Grand Master Flanders presided over the deliberations.

The prayer at the opening and closing was by Grand Chaplain Horton. Franklin Woodman of Haverhill was installed grand standard bearer.

A report affecting alterations in the grand constitution was adopted. One section that relates to dispensations for holding new lodges provides for this addition:

"In the city of Boston, the recommendation of two-thirds of the lodges in the city shall be sufficient if the petition is countersigned by the district deputy grand masters whose jurisdiction includes any part of the city. If in any case only one lodge fails to recommend the dispensation it may nevertheless be issued by the grand master at his discretion or by the grand lodge."

An added provision in regard to applicants for membership in lodges makes it incumbent on the petitioner that he should reside six months in the place where he applies, before he is eligible.

Grand Master Flanders and officers of grand lodge will reconstitute in Newton on Thursday evening a lodge whose charter was surrendered several years ago.

Seven who held membership at that time are among those who petitioned for a restoration of the charter. The name chosen for the lodge is Fraternity.

COUNTERFEIT CAR TICKETS FOUND

CHICAGO—An attempt to uncover a wholesale mail order business in alleged counterfeit street car tickets was the cause Wednesday of two raids in South Side residence districts.

J. E. Farris, conductor on the Illinois Central railroad, is under arrest and his brother, William L. Farris, another employee, is sought by the police.

Detectives say they have evidence of a printing establishment on the outskirts of Akron, O., and in the course of the year, it is charged, fully 1,000,000 tickets on the Cleveland street railway lines were sold, the profits, according to the detectives, being divided equally between the car crews that participated in the plot and the men who printed the tickets.

AFTER EIGHT MONTHS IN JAPAN MR. WARNER RETURNS TO MUSEUM

Langdon Warner returned Wednesday from eight months in Japan and has immediately resumed his duties as assistant curator of the Japanese department at the Museum of Fine Arts.

Mr. Warner spent nearly a year with the Okakura's Art Club of Japan (Nippon Bijutsuin) in the vicinity of Tokio. He then went to Nara and from September 1907 to December, 1908, he was engaged in the study of sculpture under the guidance of Mr. Niino, who afterward came to America to assist in the installation of the Japanese department in the new museum.

While in Japan Mr. Warner assisted Mr. Okakura in making the English translation of the great work on Japanese "Temples and Their Treasures." This is a work published by the Japanese government from material which no one else could gain and is only obtained by presentation from the government. A great deal of this information was collected by Mr. Okakura in his work for the Archaeological Society of Japan, when the contents of every temple and all other works of art were catalogued and photographed.

ELM FARM COMPANY PAYS $5000 FINE IN UNITED STATES COURT

The Elm Farm Company, a subsidiary of the Whiting milk concern, operating chiefly in Dorchester, pleaded guilty to a violation of the Elkins act and was fined $5000 by Judge Dodge in the United States district court in this city Wednesday afternoon.

Acceptance by the company of a rebate on rates, granted by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company on a shipment of milk from Williamstown, Conn., to the Bird street station in Dorchester Sept. 1, 1910, was the specific complaint.

The regular rate between these two points is $23.02 per car load, not to exceed 840 cans of 8 1/2 quarts capacity, or about 2 1/2 cents per can, whereas on the day in question the road carried a carload of 1285 cans for $23.02, making the rate about 1.9 cents per can.

W. S. Gregg, special prosecutor, and United States District Attorney French represented the government, and John F. Cusick, junior counsel for the Whiting, represented the defendant company.

The reading of the indictment, which consisted of 60 counts, charging 30 offenses between Sept. 1, 1910, and February of this year, was waived, and the company pleaded guilty to two counts referring to the shipment on Sept. 1.

Counsel said in extenuation that the maximum load provision was inserted in the tariff of May 1 last by the railroad without the knowledge of the defendant, which continued to receive carloads of about 1200 cans, not knowing it was in violation of law, and therefore acting without malice.

The district attorney not pressed the remaining 58 counts in the indictment and moved that a fine of $5000 be imposed with a further assessment of $350 in costs. Judge Dodge so ordered and checks for these amounts were passed over. The maximum penalty for each offense is $20,000 and the minimum $1000.

The Elm Farm Company was indicted May 26 last jointly with the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, the latter for granting and the former for accepting rebates on milk shipments in violation of the Elkins act of 1903 as amended in 1906.

Mr. Cusick has filed demurrers to the charges of violation of the Sherman anti-trust act made against Isaac Whiting, George Whiting and John K. Whiting in indictments found at the same time.

RATIONAL GOLF

By JASON ROGERS.

By her victory at Portrush in the ladies' championship, Miss Dorothy I. Campbell has sealed her reputation, and takes rank with the finest players whom the history of ladies' golf has recorded, says the London Globe. By common consent Miss Campbell was the best all-round golfer in the tournament, and her success is an instance of the survival of the fittest. In her we have a more likely subject than any other to disprove Harold Hilton's theory that the woman cannot successfully cope with the man at the odds of a half. Her steadiness and her command of the various strokes of the game, backed by her pluck in fighting a losing battle, would test the skill of any amateur living. The handicap would be severely felt by her opponent, for there is no lady golfer of the day less likely to throw away her stroke at the stroke holes. But it is improbable that her powers will be put to this test, for there is no one who has a greater dislike of exhibition golf.

Miss Campbell is a natural golfer, bred and reared in a good school. At Bunker Hill and North Berwick were laid the foundations of the game which has now, after some disappointing years, risen to the utmost heights. And like most natural golfers, she plays golf for the love of it, and would any day rather have a match with a friend than play in competition. It was this natural golf which put her in such good stead when she came back to Britain after 18 months absence in Canada. Under a different sky and on courses possessing few of the characteristics of link links, the made golfer would have lost her game. Miss Campbell appears to have found an even better one than she went out with. Her victory will be popular everywhere, and will do an immense amount of good, let us hope, in checking the pot-hunting tendency which is sometimes as prominent on the women's links as on the men's.

Miss Campbell has made indisputable her position as the leading lady golfer of the world, says the London Chronicle. She has won the championships of Britain, the United States and Canada, and she may add to the list the honors of her native country, for she intends to take part in the Scottish championship at St. Andrews next month. Miss Campbell is essentially a skillful player; she relies not one little bit on strength. Accurate timing is the secret of her long hitting, and excellent judgment does the rest. Demure and bashful as a school girl, and slight of physique, she does not look a golf champion, but she is one of the few lady players with whom a first-class amateur would probably have considerably the worst of the bargain if he tried to give a half in a series of matches.

DEPRESSION BILL FOR LYNN TRACKS TO BE REPORTED

A bill providing for the abolition of grade crossings in the central part of Lynn by depression rather than elevation of the railroad tracks is to be reported in the Legislature by the committee on railroads according to a vote taken at an executive meeting late Wednesday.

The bill provides that depression of the tracks shall begin east of Commercial street and continue to a point east of the present Lynn station, where it will return to the present grade at the elevated structure over Commercial and Chatham streets which was erected when it was planned to have elevation along the entire line through Lynn. The bill further provides for a four-track line as desired by President Mellen rather than one of two-tracks as at present.

The city of Lynn pays, beside the cost of removing certain work of elevation so far completed, 10 per cent of the cost of abolishing the crossings of the two original tracks, the state 25 per cent, while the Boston & Northern, where it lines run, pays no more than it would under the grade crossing act, 15 per cent of the cost of depressing the two tracks.

Representatives Reed of Cambridge and Sorenson of Boston reserve their right to dissent on the bill.

U. S. STEEL IS AN ACTIVE FEATURE IN THE TRADING TODAY

Growing Belief That Nothing Detrimental Will Develop in Congressional Inquiry Causes Aggressive Buying.

LOCALS ARE FIRM

Aggressive buying of U. S. Steel was the feature of the early trading in the securities markets this morning. In New York 5000 shares of the stock changed hands at the opening at 70 1/2, compared with last night's closing price of 70 1/2, and it sold up to 80 during the first few minutes of trading.

The impression is growing that the congressional investigation of the corporation will show nothing detrimental to it and it was this more than any other influence which had to do with the advance in the stock. Shorts covering was most pronounced.

Union Pacific and the copper issues were prominent. Amalgamated Copper made a good early advance. Utah Copper was very erratic. Stocks were easier at the end of the first half hour. The local issues were generally firm. The early gains were soon lost, and before midday many of the leading New York securities were off a fraction of a point or more. Steel sold a small fraction under last night's closing price.

The fertilizer group was particularly weak. Virginia-Carolina Chemical was off 1/2 at the opening at 58 1/2. It dropped to 56 1/2 before midday. American Cotton Oil opened unchanged at 53 and declined 2 points. Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting both sold below last night's closing prices after an early advance.

The Wheeling & Lake Erie issues were conspicuously strong. The Eries were heavy, the first preferred dropping more than a point below last night's closing figure. Losses of a point or more were sustained by Great Northern preferred, Texas Company, Northern Pacific, St. Paul and Lehigh Valley.

The local market toward midday became irregular. North Butte, after opening unchanged at 33 1/2, improved a small fraction and then declined nearly a point. Wolverine was up 1 1/2 at the opening at 115. It declined to 114, advanced to 115, and then dropped 2 points. Mohawk opened up 1/2 at 51 1/2, declined fractionally and then rose to 53 before midday.

Mass. Mining opened at 8 1/2, assessment of $2 paid, as compared with last night's closing price of 6 1/2. It later advanced fractionally and then declined. There was a good recovery in the New York market in the afternoon. Underwood Typewriter was particularly strong. Texas Company was very weak, dropping 6 points from last night's closing before 2 o'clock. The rest of the market was steady and quiet.

LONDON—The markets exhibited a cheerful tone upon the concluding of the fortnightly settlement without difficulties. Consols are hardening. Home rails present a more robust appearance on covering of short contracts. Sentiment has been helped by indications that the shipping strike is merely sporadic and lacking in backbone. Freight business is being conducted as usual.

Americans are firm especially United States Steel shares. Foreign issues are receiving good support. De Beers up 1-16 to 18 5-16.

THE SOUTHWEST'S THE MARKETABLE SUPPLY OF WHEAT

NEW YORK—By end of the current month the country southwest of the Missouri and west of the Mississippi will have a marketable supply of new wheat aggregating 180,000,000 bushels, out of a total indicated winter wheat crop of 480,000,000 bushels.

Estimates of yield place the Kansas crop at rather widely differing figures. Kansas has an enormous area of nearly 5,000,000 acres. Cutting and threshing have gone forward so rapidly that it is accepted as certain that Kansas wheat will be in primary markets before July 1. New wheat is being offered generally for immediate shipment from points south of the Missouri at this date.

The acreage and yields estimated for 1911 and final for 1910 in the earlier winter wheat states is given below:

One of the first effects of the harvest two weeks earlier than usual will be to call railway equipment into use to handle the grain. During July especially, the movement of wheat to Kansas City, St. Louis and the Gulf ports should begin to show itself in the gross earnings of southwestern railroads. Last year Kansas City received over 67,000,000 bushels of grain, and St. Louis received 66,169,000 bushels, not including 2,678,000 barrels of flour, making in all 78,210,000 bushels.

CONDITION OF BROOKLYN BANKS

WASHINGTON—The comptroller of the currency reports principal items in condition of five Brooklyn national banks as of June 7, 1911, compared with previous call on March 7, 1911, and that of a year ago, June 30, 1910, as follows:

00,168,000 bushels, not including 2,918,000 barrels of flour, making in all 78,210,000 bushels.

COKE INDUSTRY IS STILL QUIET

PITTSBURGH—Coke orders are coming to local makers very leisurely and once more curtailment at the furnaces has been resorted to in order to maintain prices. Most low-price contracts terminated with the first of this month, and as few iron and steel interests have covered for their needs for last half delivery, there should be a rush of orders shortly for fuel from these sources.

Most furnace interests have been buying from month to month, and this has left a large amount of coke during the last week in stock piles. Furnace production will therefore be curtailed a little farther this week to rid the yards of this stock before there is any chance for a reduction in prices.

Shipments from the field last week increased over previous week by 216 cars of about 7000 tons. Estimated tonnage output is 290,000 tons, while production aggregated only 270,000 tons, indicating that considerable stock coke is being unloaded. There is still much stock in the yards at the furnaces and merchant works.

The second quarter of this year shows a decided falling off in trade. At present rate of production the total for quarter will aggregate 3,500,000 tons against 4,200,000 tons for first quarter.

STOCK DIVIDEND IS RATIFIED

CHICAGO—Stockholders of the National Safe Deposit Company have ratified the declaration of the 40 per cent stock dividend, amounting to $1,000,000, payable to stock of record on May 1, thereby increasing the capital from $2,500,000 to $3,500,000. The company owns the First National Bank building.

The annual statement for the year ended April 30 showed net earnings of 16.89 per cent on the capital stock of $2,500,000. For the previous year the earnings amounted to 13.88 per cent. The officers were reelected.

BROKER IS SUSPENDED.
NEW YORK—An announcement was made at the stock exchange of the suspension for a period of three months of Frank W. Duryea, of the firm of F. W. Duryea & Co. The charge was that of carrying a clerk's account in his office in violation of the rules of the exchange.

SEARS-ROEBUCK SALES.
CHICAGO—It is stated that the sales made by Sears-Roebuck & Co. thus far in June show an increase of between 2 and 3 per cent, compared with the corresponding time last year. The increase in May was around 6 per cent.

SATISFACTORY MEET HELD BY AIRMEN OF
SOUTH GERMAN CLUBS

Prize Given by Heidelberg Is Lost Through Failure of Aviator to Distinguish
Landing Place at First.

WAR OFFICE HELPS

Officers Enter a Program
Specially Arranged—Skill in Managing Machine and Tests of Motors an Object.

(Special to the Monitor.)

HEIDELBERG—According to the program arranged by the airship clubs of South Germany, the aviators taking part in the upper Rhenish flying contest were timed to arrive at Heidelberg on Thursday, May 25.

In anticipation of the event, and although the Neckar valley was enveloped in fog, large crowds of people made their way to the parade ground, where the aviators were to alight at the early hour of 4:30.

The red flag, the signal that the aviators had started, was seen to be hoisted and about 5:30 the buzzing, whirling noise of machinery was heard, heralding the approach of a biplane which was at length discernible parting the gray curtain of mist that hung all around the ground. Unfortunately the aviator, Emil Jeannin, failed to perceive that he had reached the landing ground and continued his flight, to the disappointment of the assembled crowd.

In the meanwhile a second aviator, Helmut Hirth, carrying an officer as passenger, arrived on the scene in a monoplane. Watched with intense eagerness, he made a graceful and easy descent, sweeping down upon the field like a huge dragonfly. On alighting from his machine Hirth and his companion were greeted with loud cheers.

Prize Is Lost

Shortly afterward Jeannin, having discovered his mistake, returned and landed his aeroplane with equal success, but the delay caused him to forfeit the prize bestowed by the town of Heidelberg on the first arrival. A third aviator, Karl Witterstaetter, followed close upon the other two and landed his machine, a biplane, with similar grace and ease.

H. R. H. Prince Henry of Prussia, who had acted as patron of the contest, was present on the field. Being himself an aviator, his royal highness showed a keen interest in the proceedings, conversing with the flyers in the genial and unceremonious manner that distinguishes him.

At 6:23 Jeannin again mounted his machine and flew twice round the course, remaining four minutes in the air and thus winning the prize offered by the local society.

Students Give Prize

Witterstaetter also won a prize offered by the Heidelberg students for a similar circuit of the course. Shortly after 7 o'clock and within a few minutes of each other the three aviators started for Mannheim, their appointed destination. Hirth, owing to a damaged propeller, only got clear of the field soon after 8 o'clock. The distance of 22 kilometres between Heidelberg and Mannheim was eventually covered by the three airmen in 9, 12 and 15 minutes respectively.

To the ordinary public the flying exhibition must have been disappointing, but to professionals the program, as arranged by the airship clubs, was of special interest because its object was not to break records, or to amuse the populace, but rather to try the aviator's skill in the management of his machine and in the finding of his bearings, as well as to test the durability of the different motors with which the various aeroplanes were fitted, in a long distance flight. For this reason the contest was known as the "Zuverlässigkeitflug" (reliability flight), and extended from May 20 to 28.

Though not a military undertaking, the war office showed its interest in the enterprise by allowing its officers to take part in a specially arranged program.

ENGLISH SWEET
PEAS OUT EARLY

(Special to the Monitor.)

LONDON—Many plants this season are coming into bloom almost before their time, and the sweet pea growers who intend to compete for the £1000 ($5000) sweet pea prize at the show held in July are wondering how with plants nearing bloom early in June they will be able to show their best specimens late the following month.

From Malvern comes the intimation that stocks are already in flower, far earlier than usual. However, as gardeners know, it is much easier to keep plants from flowering than to hurry them forward, and however high a plant may grow, the central shoot goes on bearing specimens fit to compete at any show.

FLOWER SHOW ATTRACTION

Royal Horticultural Society Gathers Myriads of Blooms Together for Display.

One of the outside stands at the Temple flower show in London.

(Special to the Monitor.)

LONDON—In an English gardener's diary the gala event of the whole season is certainly the Temple flower show, which is held annually in the grounds of the Inner Temple under the management of the Royal Horticultural Society. It is curious to think of this splendid exhibition, probably quite the largest gathering of bloom of every shade, color and variety to be seen anywhere, taking place in the midst of these London inns of court, surrounded by the busy hum of the traffic of a great city.

Among so much that is beautiful it is difficult perhaps to make a choice. The roses it is impossible to overlook, they are superb. With their dainty delicate perfume, their exquisite tints and the grace with which each separate bloom is set upon the slender stalk, they form a study of themselves. "Lady Hillingdon," a lovely pale orange rose, "Karl Druschki" of the purest white, cream "Nepheles" roses, and a splendid pink variety known as "Mrs. George Shawyer," grown at Canterbury, are just a few of the countless varieties that show how wide a range of color is to be found in the rose gardens. There remains yet one other rose that cannot be passed over without notice, namely the "Juliet," that made its first appearance at this exhibition exactly a year ago. It is a hybrid briar that has the outside of its petals of old gold and their inner face of rich rosy red changing to a deeper rose as the flower expands.

The orchid fancier might well spend several hours in front of the magnificent collection of these interesting plants brought together for this occasion by the Horticultural Society. Arranged tier upon tier, in a high bank, cattaveas, dendrobiums, cypripediums, and odontoglossums were mingled like a thousand stars in brilliant coloring, and who can say how many corners of the globe they hailed from?

As for the carnations, their varieties are as numerous as the roses. Falling into two great classes, the perpetual flowering kind, and what is generally termed the "border variety," they represent almost every shade of color. But probably a salmon carnation, called "Lady Hermione," was more noticed than others this year, for the Queen when visiting the flower show on its opening day had selected this particular blossom for the coronation bouquet. At the same time "Progress," a perpetual flowering pink, of a beautiful hue of soft mauve, growing some six feet high, and giving forth a most lovely fragrance, proved well worthy of its name.

Group by group, growing side by side, are the most brilliant begonias, gloxinias with soft velvet petals, graceful lilies of the valley, simple modest little primulas, feathery spikes of white and pink, tall and stately looking cannas, starlike cinerarias, dazzling bright azaleas, and a veritable host of other plants, fill the Temple gardens to overflowing. Then again the various plots allotted in the open space to the making up of mixed borders, rockeries, and clumps of variegated foliage represent yet another interesting and attractive section. Here stands some great bank of flowering shrubs, there a prettily planted rock garden, a few steps further lead to a patch of neatly clipped and trimmed box bushes, with the old time peacock design in the foreground.

There is no doubt that the Temple flower shows are among the best things that London, with all its variety of attractions, has to offer.

FAIR PROSPECTS ARE HELD OUT TO SUFFRAGE CAMP

Sir Edward Grey in Speaking at Carnegie Dinner Gives Promise That Bill Will Be Defended from Obstruction.

(Special to the Monitor.)

LONDON—Sir Edward Grey, at the banquet given in Mr. Carnegie's honor, had something to say on the subject of women's suffrage. He wished to correct some misapprehensions about what the government had said about it. It was a very serious matter that the House of Commons had, year by year, read a second time bills in favor of women's suffrage, and then proceeded no further with them.

But the time has now come when something definite must be done. The government has promised an opportunity of passing the bill, and that is to be a real opportunity. It was not a bogus offer. If there was a determined majority anxious to proceed with the bill and a day or two were required, they would be given.

The intention of the government was to give the promoters of the bill a chance of defending themselves against obstruction and making reasonable progress.

DOVER AND CALAIS
MAIL RATES FIXED

(Special to the Monitor.)

LONDON—The railway commissioners were applied to by the South Eastern and Chatham Railway Company in respect of carriage of mails between Dover and Calais. The sum originally claimed by the company was £32,000 per annum ($200,000).

Sir James Woodhouse, on behalf of the commissioners, said their opinion was that the railway company should receive £20,000 a year (dating from Oct. 31, 1910) for the service of turbine steamers.

INTERESTING FIND IN EGYPT IS MADE FROM LIGHTHOUSE TOP

Member of Ports and Lights Service Discovers at Ras-el-Tin, on Bed of Sea, the Remains of Ancient Breakwater Some 10 to 13 Feet Broad.

(Special to the Monitor.)

ALEXANDRIA—At a recent meeting of the Archaeological Society, Mr. Malaval reported that Mr. Joindet, of the ports and lights service, when standing on the top of the lighthouse at Ras-el-Tin on an absolutely calm day, saw on the bottom of the sea at a short distance from the shore a well-marked line of light-colored rocks. Going down, he found that the line of rocks was a breakwater some 10 to 13 feet broad, built of rough blocks placed one on the other.

Mr. Malaval went on to say that he had examined the spot himself and had come to the conclusion that the breakwater ran parallel to the old line of the Pharos island quays, of which mention is made by Strabo, and which were assaulted and carried by Caesar's soldiers during the famous attack on the island. The fact that the breakwater is some little distance from the present line of the shore would be accounted for by a subsidence of the land having taken place.

Dr. Breccia also was able to report an interesting find, that of a marble statue which had been unearthed at Abu-Nawatir. The head is gone, but it would appear to represent a priestess of Isis, and shows signs of having been painted. It dates probably from the second century, A. D. The head of a large sphinx had also been discovered during some building operations in the same locality.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE IN AUSTRALIA SAID TO BE GOOD FOR WOMEN

The Hon. Andrew Fisher,
Prime Minister, Tells Deputation in England What Has Been Done.

MEN ARE PLEASED

Premier Says They Think It
Is Impossible for Them to Represent Other Sex—He Is in Favor Personally.

(Special to the Monitor.)

LONDON—The Hon. Andrew Fisher, prime minister of Australia, received a deputation of members of the National Union of Women Suffrage societies. The deputation wished to obtain information from him as to the working of women suffrage in the commonwealth.

Mrs. Fawcett, on behalf of the deputation, said that they were anxious to indicate their gratitude to the dominion of Australia for the resolution which both houses of Parliament there had more than once passed in support of the movement, and they desired cordially to welcome Mr. Fisher to England as the official representative not only of the men, but of the women of Australia.

Mr. Fisher said that neither Australia nor New Zealand was in any danger at all from the extension of the franchise to women. What he had to say referred entirely to Australia. They did not intend while they were in England to come violently into conflict with the people who managed this country. Personally, he said, he had never in this country advocated anything in regard to franchise, but he thought there should be equality on the part of men and women. The deputation had assured him that the methods used were all right. He was not there to question their methods, he said; they must pursue the methods best suited to the attainment of their object, and in doing that they had his sympathy and good wishes.

Women Improved

They had heard in Australia and in New Zealand, as they heard in England, questions as to whether the extension of the franchise to women would deteriorate women in general, and lead to domestic unhappiness. He did not think so. Of course, he could not speak for all women, but speaking for the one he knew best, he thought it slightly improved Mrs. Fisher.

As to the effect the woman suffrage had on industrial legislation, he believed it had been very good indeed in Australia. He thought that it had a good effect on the women themselves. In a general sense it had made elections much more like what they should be, making the polling day more like an ordinary church gathering or reception than the rowdy entertainments he had seen in more than one country.

As to the statements that the granting of the woman suffrage would be a serious matter to the state at the time of emergency, he remarked that Australia had passed through many a crisis since the franchise was granted, and he ventured to say that no public man in Australia would say that the woman's vote had in any way injured the state.

Men Advocates

Most of the men in Australia were strenuous advocates of the extension of the franchise to women, adopting that attitude because they held that no man, however able and accomplished he might be, could represent women. The individuality of women could not be interpreted in the political arena by man any more than it could be in any other arena of the battle of life.

In reply to questions, Mr. Fisher stated that the women suffrage had led to the establishment in Australia of a minimum wage for women as well as men. They had had some little difficulty in Australia as they had in England with regard to the jealousy of men's trade unions. He was afraid that the fear that women would usurp men's places was real among trade unions in England, but it would melt away as it had done in Australia. As to women coming to the mother country from Australia, he had no doubt that they would feel degraded at losing their citizen rights, and most of them, if they were true Australians, would make a few remarks about it.

SPANISH PREMIER
IN CONSTITUTION

(Special Correspondence of the Monitor.)

MADRID—Owing to a difficult situation which has arisen in connection with a clause in the constitution, the premier, Senor Canalejas, has had a battle to wage.

This clause requires that a quorum of a half plus one of the total number of the senators must vote, whether for or

WOMEN WRITERS FOREGATHER

Miss May Sinclair Presides at Annual Dinner Given in London.

(Special to the Monitor.)

LONDON—Honor was paid to the author of "The Divine Fire" when Miss May Sinclair was elected by her fellow writers to the post of chairman at the women writers' dinner. Upwards of 200 writing women dine together annually and the post of chairman is a coveted one; Mrs. Humphrey Ward, Mrs. Flora Annie Steel, Isabel Thornycroft Fowler, Miss Montessor, and Miss Elizabeth Robbins have been among the former chairmen and have made the first speech of the evening. Miss May Sinclair, however, made no speech but merely proposed the royal toasts.

When Lady Bell, author of "The Arbitrator," had spoken on "The Soul of the Dinner," and Mrs. Margaret Woods had done honor to Thackeray in an able speech, the chairman turned to the guest at her right hand, and Mrs. George Riggs rose to speak. Those who had never before heard Kate Douglas Wiggin were much impressed. She compared English and American writers and spoke of the influence of the zeal and progress that made one feel as one entered New York harbor that one must go ashore and run, somewhere, anywhere, but run. She thought that the calmer atmosphere of the old country contributed to the production of more masterpieces, but she looked for great books on both sides of the water.

She sat down amid a storm of applause as she concluded with the words: "Masterpieces will never be produced by those who recognize no master."

Miss Macnaughton, one of England's best women speakers, followed with a speech on "Humor," and the originator of Christina Macnab had a claim to be listened to on that particular subject. When the laughter had died out, a general move was made, and introductions took place between authors who perhaps had no other opportunity of meeting. Women of all shades of thought were brought together by their literary sympathy. Madame Albanesi and Miss Violet Hunt sat at one table, Mrs. W. K. Clifford, Mrs. Meynell, Mrs. Catherine Thurston, Mrs. Charles Perrin and Mrs. Belloc-Lowndes at other tables.

Out of the list of the committee no one's absence was more regretted than that of Thackeray's daughter, Lady Ritchie, whose "Old Kensington" and the editing of the works of her father as well as "The Story of Elizabeth" and her reminiscences, make us deeply grateful to her.

SURVEYORS CAN
SAYS LORD LUCAS

(Special to the Monitor.)

LONDON—A conference of surveyors was opened at Westminster recently, by Lord Lucas, the under secretary of state for the colonies. Most of the overseas dominions were represented.

Lord Lucas having welcomed the delegates, said that the present conference was due to the passing of a resolution by the colonial conference of 1907, by which it was decided to establish reciprocity between the respective governments and examining authorities with regard to the examination and authorization of land surveyors. The work of surveyors was apt to pass unnoticed, though it was of such an important nature. They were, it might be said, the skirmishers in the front of the army of progress and development.

Competent survey work was needed, and never more than at the present time. The great dominions were opening up railways across vast continents and, continued Lord Lucas, he could not help feeling that any shortage of surveyors would be overcome by reciprocity in that branch of work throughout the empire.

Reciprocity would not only benefit the dominions by providing as many surveyors as might be required, but would also confer a greater boon on the individual members of the profession, than if the work were organized on a narrower basis. Work achieved on the principle of reciprocity would, continued the speaker, give a practical imperial tie, and would be one of the best and soundest bricks in the imperial building which it was in their capacity to make.

against, when the actual vote of a measure is called for.

The bill abolishing the Octroi dues is in danger, owing to this clause, for the Conservatives have refused to vote, and the government is unable to get the required number of votes owing to the above-mentioned conditions.

The premier has made two eloquent speeches on the subject, pointing out to the Conservatives that it was their duty to vote, even if against the bill. He has also appealed to the bishops saying that he is willing to stand or fall on a fair vote, but could not feel that putting the constitution to a use for which it was not meant was a fair advantage to take.

The Spanish ambassadors to London and Paris have arrived to record their vote on the bill which, it is expected, will be taken very shortly.

INVESTITURE IS AN EXCUSE FOR
PRINCE'S MEDAL

(Special to the Monitor.)

LONDON—A medal in commemoration of the Prince of Wales' investiture at Carnarvon on July 13 has been designed by William Goscombe John, R.A., and will be issued next month by the royal mint.

It will be 1 3/4 inches in diameter, and will bear a portrait of the prince on the obverse side. On the reverse side there will be a representation of Carnarvon castle with the sea in the foreground. At the top, in the sky space, a small circle formed by the Garter, bearing the inscription "Honi soit qui mal y pense" is crossed by the prince's own motto "Ich dien" and the prince's coronet appears at the head of the design, while the dragon is seen at the foot. The following inscription runs round the medal just inside the edge: "Arwisiad Iorwerth Tywsog Cymen, M.G." The medal, complete in its case, will cost £4 15s. ($23.75) in gold, and 3s. (75 cents) in silver.

RUSSIANS TO BUILD
RAILWAY IN SPITE OF FINNISH OBJECTIONS

Diet Rejects Proposed Construction of the Hiitola-
Raasuli Link From St. Petersburg to Vasa.

PURPOSE STRATEGIC

(Special to the Monitor.)

HELSINKI—As was expected, the Finnish Diet rejected the proposed construction of the Hiitola-Raasuli railway, but as Senator Count Berg announced recently at a discussion in the Finnish Diet, if consent were withheld the Russian authorities would proceed without it.

The line which the Russian government is most determined to construct is one on the route from St. Petersburg to Vasa (Nikolaistad). The cost of this line will amount to fmk.15,000,000 and is to be finished in about five years. The Hiitola-Raasuli railway will form a link in this main line.

From Nyslott, the present head of the line, an extension is to be carried right across Finland to Vasa on the Bothnian gulf. A junction will be made with the central Finland line to Kajana, and at Iisalmi, on that line, another extension will be made with the west coast line to the far north. When these lines have been constructed the Russian government will possess two routes to Vasa, not to say three, and also to Torneo, at the head of the gulf.

The reasons given for the vast extension of railways in Finland is that they are of strategic value and therefore of imperial interest. It is hard at first sight to see why these lines should be regarded as of strategic importance, for they would not be of any assistance in connection with the defense of the country. The opinion is very generally held, however, that Russia's interest in Vasa is but part of her general policy toward Finland of latter years, a policy which seems to aim at the conversion of an autonomous country into a mere base for military operations. The position of Vasa on the gulf of Bothnia gives the key to an otherwise obscure situation.

JAPAN IS RAPIDLY LEARNING ENGLISH

SURELY in no other independent country in the world has the English language been adopted to the extent that it has been in Japan. Considering the extraordinary dissimilarity between the English and Japanese languages, it is a matter for congratulation both to the Japanese and English speaking people that Japan has had the enterprise to adopt English in so far as she has. Not only do the English benefit, but it may safely be said that the whole of Europe is likewise greatly indebted for being enabled to approach the Japanese through the intermediary language that is so generally comprehended in trade and commerce.

For centuries Japan resisted the invasion of the foreigner, but eventually having outgrown old prejudices and realizing that the westerner had not only come to stay himself but had also brought his customs for permanent establishment in the land, she suddenly woke up to action and determined to meet the invader on his own ground. The result is that today English is taught in the Japanese schools, it can be spoken in a varying degree by practically all the upper classes and the better educated, and the foreigner finds such matter as time-tables, advertisements and notices printed in English. It is also spoken in the larger Japanese hotels and shops to the great convenience of every foreign resident and tourist in the country. The credit for all this must not be given entirely to Japan, however, for although she has certainly been most receptive, still without the determined push of the English speaking people she would not be in the advanced position that she is today. It has to a large extent been a case of enforced progress, but once progress was recognized as inevitable, there has been an advance such as is unprecedented in the annals of the world. That the English language is so much spoken in the large towns and that people are perceiving more and more the advantage it gives as a means of communication in trade is a factor working for mutual benefit to both countries and indirectly for the peace and prosperity of the whole world.

From the early '50s it was evident that with a language so foreign to European thinking and so baffling in its construction, it was necessary for the Japanese nation to meet the westerner, rather than for the westerner to meet the Japanese. Nor was it difficult to decide which language to adopt, for many things militated in favor of English; Englishmen even in those early days were scattered fairly plentifully throughout the east, from Bombay to Shanghai, Australia was Japan's neighbor in the south and America in the east. English shipping was far more numerous than that under any other flag, and there were more Americans and Englishmen in Japan than all the other nationalities. It is thus not difficult to see from the condition of things at the time that English should be the language, and while it may be thought strange that a country which up to recent years was so far removed from the centers of civilization should have more readily adopted up-to-date ideas than any other country which has been aroused to greatness, it is nevertheless a fact that a stranger with no knowledge of any other language except English can probably find his way through Japan with greater facility than he could in any country in Europe. Languages follow the line of least resistance, and when two countries are brought into close touch, generally speaking, the easier of the two languages becomes the medium. The Anglicism of Japan, by which is meant the adoption of the English language and ideas in that country, is a striking example of how English is steadily gaining in the world.

MARTIN LUTHER ON ECONOMICS

THE series of papers on Martin Luther appearing in the Century takes up in the June number the famous address to the German nobility published in 1520. Many people have been amazed at the range of information which this address indicates, but it is plain that as Luther had long been a public man he was familiar with all that the people of his time were thinking and talking about. He says nothing very new, only sets down with great common sense, the same things on social, religious, economic and political questions which other men of his time were discussing with equal intelligence. Yet some of his ideas seem naive enough. He wanted to put a bridle on the Fuggers, the great money-lenders of the day. "How is it possible," he exclaimed, "that in a single man's lifetime such great and kingly wealth can be collected together if all be done rightly and according to God's will? I am not skilled in accounts, but I do not understand how a hundred guilders can gain 30 in a year or how one can gain another, and that not from the soil or wit of men but on the blessing of God."

He wanted to curb the reigning extravagance in food and clothes by legislation and declared that society was not at all governed by Christian ideals, but by wholly worldly considerations.

He had one merit shared by all venturing into unfamiliar fields. He recognized his own ignorance. "I know," he wrote, "that I have sung a lofty strain, that I have proposed many things that will be thought impossible and attacked many points too sharply. But what was I to do? I was bound to say it. If I had the power, this is what I should do."

ROMANCES ON SOIL OF GREECE

THE Romanes lecture which was given in the Chaeledonian theater, Oxford, by J. M. Bury, Regius professor of modern history in the University of Cambridge, was on the subject of "Romance of Chivalry on Greek Soil." He showed that the Greeks already possessed, along with their own technique, all the ideas, material and apparatus for romances of chivalry when the Westerners came and established themselves within their borders. The romantic literature of the west did not come as a new revelation to a people who possessed in their own literature, motives and ideals, a tradition of fantastic fiction. Yet the close contact with the French and Italian settlers did exert an influence on Greek soil. There was a demand among the Greeks for fiction of the same class as the French romances, and their writers accordingly responded to it, not only by versions, but also by original creations. These creations, however, were of Greek not foreign parentage; they had a native, not foreign tradition behind them; the medieval epic and the amorous fiction which existed in the Hellenistic age. They were inferior to the best compositions of the French poets. They had not the same stamp of cosmopolitan literature, but were the outcome of indigenous development, the legitimate progeny of a literature also accustomed to take little and to give much.

OXFORD ON A BOAT RACE DAY

THE last day of the Oxford summer "eights" brought the usual crowd of the friends and relations of the undergraduates down to the historic old city, and anxious young men were to be seen in numbers collecting their people at the station and escorting them to their rooms in the colleges, where many cheery little lunch parties were the order of the day. Very welcome was the restful shade of the ancient colleges after the noise and excitement of the river bank and the crowds in the town, and a strange contrast their dignified and old world aspect and perfect architecture, set off to the best advantage by green quadrangles and bright flowers, presented to the gay, eager, modern crowds of young people thronging them. But to see the young, wondrously high spirited life of Oxford in its full glory was to watch it on the tow path and the river bank. There the "men" of the various colleges, eager supporters of their respective crews, rushed wildly about, firing pistols, swinging rattles, shouting, waving and cheering, and it was not for lack of encouragement that any even failed to be victorious. And along the river bank the college barges afforded a point of vantage from which the visitors could watch the races, have tea and generally feel that they were sharing in the excitement of the day. The really wise, however, left the turmoil behind and in comfortable punts sped up the shaded waters of the Cherwell, under the weeping willows and pink may branches, past exquisite Magdalen College and its bridge to where the buttercup decked meadows, the overhanging trees, the river and the bright blue sky reminded them once more that there are few places more beautiful and peaceful than old England on a summer's afternoon.

Bust of John Stuart Mill at Avignon

In the ancient city of Avignon a bust was unveiled of John Stuart Mill. It has been given by an institution called the Society of Working Men Gardeners. The bust is by a local sculptor named Devaux, and is on the fountain in the middle of the square. Prior to the unveiling of the bust speeches were delivered on the life and work of the great economist. A boulevard, which is in course of construction, has been given the name of Stuart Mill by the town council of Avignon.

Avignon was for some years the home of John Stuart Mill, who lived there with his niece, Helen Taylor, in a villa now known by his name. By many acts of kindness he endeared himself to the inhabitants of the town, who have always had the greatest admiration for his talents. The exterior of the villa and also the library and study remain much as they were in the time of Mill.

"Light of the World"

Light of the world! forever, ever shining.
There is no change in Thee;
True Light of life, all joy and health
enshrining.
Thou canst not fade nor flee.

Thou hast arisen, but Thou descendest never;
Today shines as the past;
All that Thou wast Thou art, and shalt be ever,
Brightness from first to last.

Night visits not Thy sky, nor storm nor sadness;
Day fills up all its blue—
Unfading beauty, and unfaltering gladness,
And love forever new.

Light of the world! undimmed and unsetting,
O shine each mist away;
Disperse the fear, the falsehood and the fretting;
Be our unchanging Day. —H. Bonar.

Plea Made for Hidden Orchestra

Emil Fischer, the great Hans Sachs, said this of Wagner in America to a writer for Musical America: If we are so proud about our Wagner performances here why don't we follow the master's wishes in the matter of the hidden orchestra? Surely no one gets any pleasure from watching an excitable kapellmeister trying to fight a duel with his men. Moreover, in a Wagner opera the orchestra is the thing and the function of the singers is to explain in words what the orchestra is saying. This being the case, matters must be so arranged that nothing in the orchestra overpowers the text. Instead of that we find the orchestra here doing its best to drown out the singer. What chance has one singer against 120 instrumentalists?

Northern Summer

Spring comes suddenly in Finland and is followed immediately by a short summer, during which the heat is so intense at midday that on the Arctic circle it is almost impossible to face it without great discomfort. The forests burst into leaf, wild flowers spring up as if by magic, birds and insects appear from winter quarters, and the air is full of the fragrance of the pine trees and the whispering of the birch. As if to make up for the length of the winter months and the shortness of the winter days, the nights take upon themselves the character of the day. The evening light is that of the early morn, and the last flush of the twilight is so akin to the first pale color of the dawn that without a watch you could scarcely tell which was which. Rest and peace descend upon the earth, and the weird character of the light and the tints assumed by all things earthly under its softening and unearthly influence fill the thoughts with inexpressible hints of the mysterious and the infinite.

The only plants which can profitably be grown under Finnish conditions are such as will ripen rapidly—certain kinds of fruits, vegetables and grasses, the last including such hardy cereals as oats and rye. North of Uleaborg orchard fruits will not ripen, but wild raspberries and strawberries grow everywhere, and some luscious wild fruits are even confined to the far north. The farther north we go, the longer the summer day becomes, and the concentration of the light in this way causes extremely rapid growth. Grain can be sown, grown and harvested in 12 weeks.—Country Life.

Prayer without study is presumption and study without prayer is infidelity.—St. Ambrose.

TRUE SELFHOOD

IN FORMULATING a statement of personal troubles members of the human family usually begin such statement with the personal pronoun "I." Christ Jesus, however, taught his followers to put the "I" in its right place, which is in God, the source of all good. The meaning of the Master's saying, "I go unto my Father," grows daily clearer to the true Christian. He who heeds it thinks less and less, "I am in trouble," and more and more, "I am in my Father's house." He knows that in that house are "many mansions," an abiding place for each who comes. And to help the world to this realization is the Christly task to which he addresses himself.

There are few indeed into whose hearts "high yearnings" do not come "rushing and surging in," but all do not yet recognize that their consciousness of these yearnings is proof of their oneness with them. "Deep calleth unto deep," and God's child is forever and only a channel for the flowing tides of good. The material body knows nothing of these inundations of divine thoughts. The artist, the composer and the poet draw no inspiration from the body. Through they may seem to gain inspiration through the outer senses it is only as their understanding, or genius, translates the outward vision into thought that they are inspired. Blossom and bird are but blossom and bird to thought unaided by this inner seeing. Yet this seeing is "inner" only to the uninitiated, or wilful, materialist. The "middle wall of partition," the belief of life in matter, was broken down long ago by Christ Jesus, as the Scripture confidently affirms. "God is no respecter of persons," there is no high priesthood of the inner vision, or if there be such it is that every child of God serves always at the altar. Not only to the artist and the poet may the flesh become impervious, but to every heart whose aspirations lift to God.

The practical way to begin the study of Christian Science is to take firm hold of its affirmation of the allness of God and at the same time have due regard for its denials. The beginner thus gains a clear understanding of true selfhood while putting off his old sense of identity.

There is need of patience, of trustful waiting for the coming of the spirit of Truth, the impersonal sense of God and man. This period of waiting need not be long, indeed to some there may seem no waiting, so quickly may come the light. But whether the waiting be brief or protracted, the important point is that one shall gain a clear knowledge of the true while laying aside the false. In fact the attainment of the true displaces the false. The human mind, feeling its way, needs yet the reminder of the expressed denial. And thus it must be until God's allness fills consciousness.

One may read of, in books, or see played upon the stage, direful happenings. Yet because these depictions are understood to be wholly mental and symbolic they are not looked upon as real, and

GUINEVERE HAD GAY MAY FESTIVAL

TO read Sir Thomas Malory for himself and not merely the weakened nineteenth century transcriptions of him, says an English critic, is to learn how sturdy and real were the knights and ladies of Arthur's court—quite unlike the willow-waity types that modern poetry has palely reproduced from the older glowing canvas. Perhaps there is something to be said for the modern etherealizing of the folk, but it is none the less interesting to learn that Queen Guinevere gave her knights and ladies a choice of silk or cloth when they rode out on the early morning May day quest, and that this points to the thrift of old, which built coverings against the weather at the jousts and tourneys to protect the pretty clothes. That Guinevere's knights left their green silk lendings at home if the weather was not determinedly fair is more than probable. The ceremonies of the true May day festival began soon after the last April midnight, when in the dim dawning young men and maidens and musicians who gaily strummed the tabor went in procession to the woodlands and brought back all manner of green flowering branches at sunrise. The festival was never postponed on account of rain and it is certain that the courtiers must often have sallied forth in garments of solid hand made worth and of serviceable quality. For we read:

"So it befell in the month of May Queen Guinevere called unto her Knights of the Table Round, and she gave them warning that early upon the morrow she would ride on maying into woods and fields beside Westminster: 'And I warn you that there be none of you but that he be well horsed, and that ye all be clothed in green, either in silk, either in cloth, and I shall bring with me ten ladies, and every Knight shall have a lady behind him, and every Knight shall have a squire and two yeomen, and I will that ye all be well horsed.' So they made them ready, in the freshest manner, and these were the names of the Knights: Sir Kay the Seneschal, Sir Aggravaine, Sir Brandiles, Sir Sagamore le Desirous, Sir Dodinas le Savage, Sir Ozanna le Cure Hardy, Sir Ladas of the Forest Savage, Sir Persant of Inde, Sir Ironside that was called the Knight of the Red Lawns, and Sir Pelleas the Lover, and these ten Knights made them ready in the freshest manner to ride with the Queen."

BOATING ON CHARLES IN JUNE

CHARLES RIVER AT RIVERSIDE, NEAR NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

From the lateness of this spring the greens of the early season retain their freshness and delicacy now when the maturer charms of June are ordinarily to be expected in the woods of the New England coast region. The beauty of the river Charles at this time hints at primeval perfection. The progress of civilization does much to enhance the delights of nature, but it also does much to mar them. The motor boat has joys of its own, but for the real nature lover they weigh not at all with the possibilities of a canoe—the primitive conveyance of American solitudes are the white man's civilization dawned over the land. Canoeing on the Charles, in the reaches through the Newtons, especially at Riverside, gives more intimate contact with natural beauties and a deeper poetic enjoyment than the more vigorous pleasures of open waters. The river winds through quiet sylvan scenes of meadows and marsh and country houses and orchards and groves; now and again there is some sterner note in the symphony of changeable loveliness, but for the most it is restfulness and peace which steep the heart of those who go boating on the Charles.

Way of a Girl

There is a merry story in St. Nicholas about some boys in a big boarding school and a girl who lives near. The boys are at first very unwilling to make friends with the girl, for they think girls a bother. But this one is so jolly and bright she finally makes herself a thoroughly good friend to them all. They teach her to play tennis and explain the game of football to her. She is enthusiastic for the success of the boys she knows, who live in one of the school houses that is to play one of the other houses very soon. The match finally comes off and Molly is as excited over it as any of the boys and jumps up and down and hurrahs for her friends. The boys do splendidly and neither side scores till just at the close a fumble on the part of one of her team turns Miss Molly's delight into disappointment. The other side gets a touchdown and the game is over.

Then the boys gather round Molly to talk it all over and she tries to cheer them up with promise of success next time. But she says one thing that does more to cheer them up than all the rest, for they get a good rousing laugh out of it. She says to the boy who fumbled: "O Hoop, couldn't you just have told them that you did not mean to drop the ball, that it was a mistake, and let them give you another try?" The boys think this is just the funny way a girl would look at anything, and maybe it is not such a bad way, after all. At any rate next time the team will have another try and Molly feels sure there will be no mistake.

He Didn't Mind

When Bobbie went to see his grandmother he was much interested in what ever went on in the kitchen. One day she said to him: "I'm going to make you a nice little pie in a saucer, all for yourself. Don't you think I'm pretty good to take so much pains?" Bobbie pondered. "Grandmother!" he said at length, "mother told me not to be a bother, and if it's going to be any, you can just as well make my pie regular size."—Four Seas.

Reciprocity on "Broader Lines"

THIS newspaper hears of rather general complaint from the West based upon the assumption that the reciprocity agreement reached by commissioners of the United States and Canada, and now before Congress in the form of a bill, will work out somehow to the disadvantage of the American farmer. It is an interesting circumstance that the same belief is entertained very largely across the border with reference to the Canadian farmer. Moreover, it is held by opponents of the measure on this side that reciprocity will operate to injure the manufacturing industries of the United States. Per contra, this newspaper is in receipt of a protest from Canada on the ground that reciprocity will operate to destroy the infant manufacturing industries of the Dominion.

Now, as a matter of fact, no human being is capable of foretelling exactly how reciprocity will operate. The best that may be done in this direction is to take, as we know them, the facts concerning the present trade relations between the two countries under a protective tariff system, and from them draw rational conclusions as to the change that will occur in these relations under a free trade system. Of Canada's total imports, of the merchandise she purchases throughout all the world, 62 per cent comes from the United States. This country sells Canada merchandise now at the rate of $284,935,000 per annum. These figures are from reports just received by the state department. Canada, therefore, is a splendid customer of the United States, and for selfish if for no higher reasons she should be treated with all consideration. But, asks a western correspondent, if the United States is desirous of being more friendly with Canada, or if the United States is anxious to be just in its relations with Canada, why ask the American farmer to make all the sacrifices? It would not be fair to him to do so. He is not going to be asked to do so. Touching upon this very phase of the matter, on April 11 of the present year, this newspaper said: "It has been shown that the surplus of Canadian production is not sufficient to affect prices perceptibly in the United States. . . . The flow of trade between Canada and the United States (under the reciprocity agreement) will soon become as normal as the flow of trade between the different states of the Union. Prices on both sides of the line, except where they may be affected by purely local or extraordinary conditions, will find a common level. The cost of living manifests a downward tendency now. This tendency may continue after reciprocity shall have gone into operation, but it will hardly be appreciably affected by it. . . . Reciprocity will make for freer trade relations between the two countries; it will stimulate production in both countries; it will enlarge the markets and opportunities of both countries; it cannot, in the very nature of things, hurt either country."

Since that writing many of the foremost men of the West have expressed views strikingly in line with our position. Among those who have declared that reciprocity cannot hurt the western farming or any other class of producers in this country is Governor Osborn of Michigan. He has put the proposition on lines as broad as those taken by President Taft, who said at Columbus, O., "Reciprocity with Canada will benefit the entire United States, farmer, manufacturer, railroad company, middleman, warehouseman." In the United States Senate yesterday, Senator Gore, replying to Senator McCumber, who had spoken in opposition to reciprocity on the ground that it would benefit the Canadian farmer at the American farmer's expense, quoted from a recent speech of Mr. Sexsmith, member of the Dominion Parliament, to exactly the opposite effect. If in our opinion reciprocity would operate to injure either the American or the Canadian farmer we would oppose it. Our conviction is that it will be beneficial to both.

ONCE more it is predicted that the time is near at hand when the horse will have entirely disappeared from city streets. This prediction, however, now seems to come along only semi-annually whereas a year or two ago it used to be made quarterly, or even monthly.

Wind Shields for Lawmakers

LAWMAKING in a democracy is not carried on in a vacuum of dispassionate, rational consideration of measures viewed entirely apart from the political effects of their enactment upon party and upon legislators. Winds of all sorts rise from subterranean sources and sweep through the region in which the legislator does his work and registers his votes. How fierce these blasts are, and what solidity of character and keenness of thought they make necessary if the lawmaker is to maintain a moral equilibrium, few persons realize who do not at least study actual conditions in legislative halls.

Nor do these perilous aspects of his task lessen for the twentieth century legislator. He is now called upon single-handed to resist pressure from organizations of many kinds, with resources that make his own seem puny in comparison. He has to do his work with the public in a mood that deems him only a delegate and not a representative, and that rates him simply as a registrar of the popular will and not as an independent, called upon occasionally to defy constituents in obedience to conscience and higher political ends. The lawmaker of today is soon impressed with the fact that he is not expected to show the wisdom of a judge in deciding between conflicting solutions of a given problem, but that he is to be a zealous partisan dogmatist, the defender of a class, the promoter of an industry. He is to find less time for careful study of proposed legislation because he is forever beset by persons or organizations who wish to enlist him as their special attorney rather than permit him to be attorney for the people. Moreover, it may also be that he has to resist pressure from the executive department of government, when and where governors are too zealous in promoting enactment of legislation in which they believe.

Foremost among the persons engaged in attack upon the moral and mental integrity of lawmakers are the lobbyists, innumerable in variety and motive, but invariably wanting in a point of view that is broad and disinterested. Retained to secure given results for their employers, they often scruple not at misrepresentation of facts, bribes, and subtle attacks on the moral defenses of the lawmaker where and when he is known to be weak. Exercising an entirely legitimate function when their efforts are formal and confined to rational arguments and candid depiction of the imagined influence of legislation upon their clients' interests, they are tempted very often to ways and means that are indefensible. So evident is this that American legislatures of late years have been forced to measures of self-protection. Unless reports err much, conditions in both Massachusetts and Connecticut's capitols are such now that it is in order to urge stricter enforcement of laws against lobbying.

A NEW YORK court has decided, practically, that a woman's right to shop shall neither be denied nor abridged. It is somewhat like a man's right to talk politics.

REPRESENTATIVE TAYLOR of Colorado has faith enough to believe that there are a million readers awaiting the reduction in price of the Congressional Record to $1 a year who, the moment it is authorized by Congress, will forward their subscriptions to the public printer, postmasters acting as agents. When the requisite million subscribers are listed, then the Colorado statesman would have the process of enlightenment begin. This proposition has such a long string attached to it that it loses much of its practical worth. Were the Record made less costly, no doubt it would be circulated more, even in its present unveracious form. Were it made the thing it pretends to be and nothing other, then its bulk would be greatly reduced, its readability increased and respect for it enhanced. But, even with reform thus guaranteed, there may not be a million subscribers hungry and thirsty for its verbatim report of every word that falls from the lips of senators and representatives.

However, there are many citizens who do not find the Washington correspondence of the average newspaper sufficiently illuminating and explicit to make them cease longing to know what the reasons are, as given in formal debate, for votes that influence national, party and personal fortunes. These citizens are well aware that oratory counts for less than it used to, that fewer votes than formerly are influenced by arguments put forth in debate, and that legislation today is shaped in committee-rooms rather more than in open discussion in House or Senate. Nevertheless, the demand continues to be felt for more light on the course of discussion in Congress.

British voters are given by the British press very much better data for determining the capacity of public men, party leaders and lawmakers, and for watching the course of debate of important legislation. They are furnished with the parliamentary editor's interpretation of happenings at Westminster, which has just as much value as his merit as a keen analyst of men and measures can give it. Interviews with public men, as to the meaning of such action as may be taken, also are printed. But beyond this, and contributing an educational factor lacking in most cases in the American press, is the full or skillfully abbreviated record of the day's debate. That the average British elector has a clearer, self-formed opinion of the intellectual and moral qualities of his political leaders and lawmakers than the American citizen has, is due no doubt to the fact that he has more facts on which to form an opinion that is not superficial and second hand. John Bull watches his Parliament, and reports it as Brother Jonathan fails to watch and report his Congress.

FROM one point of view, if anybody can found a successful republic in Lower California, nobody, not even Madero, ought to object.

Boston Teachers' Pay

REFUSING to pass over the Governor's veto the bill explicitly providing increase of pay for Boston's teachers in elementary schools, the Senate has closed discussion of the matter viewed from that angle. Judging the attitude of the elementary teachers by an official statement just issued, they do not care to have the issue reopened at this session, unless a law similar to the one just defeated is proposed. It is more likely that, if any effort is made to deal with the problem, it will be along the lines of the Montague bill, which is broader in its scope of effect upon the teaching staff, and is so framed as to avoid creating any such question of undue interference of the state with a city department's authority as Governor Foss raised and used as basis for his veto.

It will be regrettable if the Legislature does not take some action that will both legalize and cause action by the school committee calculated to put an end to an unjust rate of payment of the city's teaching staff. While remedial legislation is being considered, it should be made as inclusive as possible and overlook no underpaid persons. Early settlement of the controversy will diminish the likelihood of its becoming a factor entering into influence of subsequent elections of school committee members.

FOR the present, at all events, it would seem to be good policy for the advocates of commission government to win over to its side as many supporters of all classes and all shades of political opinion as possible. It would seem to be good policy, also, not to weigh down the simple idea of commission government with a lot of radical attachments. The commission plan should be permitted to stand alone, entirely on its own merits. In this way it will win the support of many who will not accept it with initiative, referendum and recall provisions. These should be put before the people as separate and distinct propositions, as a matter of fair play to the commission plan. Doubtless in many instances they will carry. But where popular thought is prepared for commission government, and is not yet prepared for radical accompaniments, it is only right that the latter should await a more propitious season.

GOVERNOR WILSON can hardly fail now and then to think that if the circumstances were not just what they are he might name a man who would fill the Princeton presidency very well.

TONS of old Korean copper coins have come to Boston as junk. Let us not speak slightly of Korea's coins. Rather let us think of our own junk battleships.

Keeping Watch Over Congress

Boston's representatives in the party which leaves on Saturday to study European cities are destined to return with keener interest in creation of a worthy local dock system. They will be shown in Great Britain and in Germany such tangible and profitable results of governmental aid and private enterprise, applied separately or jointly to harbor improvement, as America cannot duplicate, and has hardly conceived of as yet. Fortunately they will be able to report to foreign questioners that a new era is dawning in Boston, and that, therefore, they need unusual privileges of investigation of this particular aspect of state and city administration. Gaining which, they will be able to return in August equipped for intelligent as well as cordial support of such plans as may naturally follow enactment of the port bill now before the Massachusetts Legislature.

Boston needs a port commission, expert in personnel, sufficiently paid and free from political bias or obligations. Its members should have ample power to devise and to execute large plans for a port that is exceptional in its possibilities as a terminal for trade originating abroad. The state, facing the problem, should plan to expend millions in creating the requisite facilities; and it should see to it, at the start, that financing of the proposition has consideration for popular rights and rewards.

A bill making provisions on this generous scale and with such safeguards in view, and creating a commission of the sort described, has just been reported to the Legislature by the committee on metropolitan affairs, which has investigated the matter with the interests of Greater Boston and New England in view. If passed in substantially its present form, the law will mark the advent of a new day in Boston's history as a center of import and export trade and as a terminal for North Atlantic passenger traffic. Back of the law and of the project stands the Chamber of Commerce.

It is a time for prompt, disinterested, broad-gauge action by the state. Big men are needed to carry out a big plan. They should be adequately paid, defended against partisan attack and given power commensurate with their responsibilities.

IN THE future no office seeker who is not looking for trouble will talk about what the campaign is costing him.

SUMMING up their patriotism in the one name, Toussaint L'Ouverture, Haitians are beginning to realize that where General Dessalines stood sponsor for Jan. 1, the day of independence, May 1, commemorative of the agricultural development due to Toussaint's efforts, is scarcely of secondary importance as a national holiday. Haiti was the second colony of the western continent to obtain its independence. Haitians are proud of the fact that this distinction brings them close to the United States. But the nationalism that sprang from the leadership of Toussaint L'Ouverture in 1801 was content to develop under the French tricolor, and it is interesting to learn that not even after Toussaint had become master of the whole country was the flag of France discarded. It was Dessalines who concluded that Napoleon's promises were not for the benefit of Haiti, and the red and blue standard of the country was raised in 1803.

Conscious of all that General Dessalines did for his native land, and probably aware that without his work for the people there would have been no independence day to celebrate, the Haitians, nevertheless, feel that the man whom Wendell Phillips placed among the greatest of his day had more than his military triumphs to bring him honors. The republic in the West Indies has had many political tribulations within the century that has passed since it obtained its liberty. There have been some able men at the head of the government, and others who served their own interests first. But there is almost unanimous opinion, now, that the impartial and honest administrations of Toussaint laid the foundation for whatever prosperity the republic now enjoys. This Haitian patriot foresaw that not the rifle but the plowshare would prove the salvation of his people. He felt sure that the best soldiers are those who become the best farmers.

In making the 1st of May a national holiday in commemoration of Toussaint's agricultural genius, the people who annually enter into competition for prizes display a patriotism which means nothing less than the greatest good for the greatest number. It takes nothing from the importance which attaches to the Haitian Jan. 1, that the nation accords high commemorative honors to the day of labor and farm development.

IF THERE is really a shortage in cadetship applicants at West Point, all that is necessary is to let the congressmen appoint extras.

THE San Francisco Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, it appears from its publication, has gone earnestly into the matter of arousing interest in drinking troughs for horses. It had become known in the city named that the public watering troughs fell short of meeting requirements in two very important particulars, cleanliness and comfort; and the society promptly set to work to remedy these defects in the service. The necessity for taking prompt action in the premises was emphasized by the fact that some firms employing teams had already given their drivers orders not to water their horses at the public troughs but to use buckets instead.

If a horse is led into a flowing stream, and given his own way, he will usually wade into the water until it is breast high. Then he will drink to his content and in luxurious comfort. It is always a pleasure to real horse fanciers to see them drink from a stream of clear water. Now, it was probably consideration of the horse's love for high water, so to speak, and plenty of it, that led the San Francisco society to introduce the breast-high drinking trough. It was plain, in the first place, that the horses of the city should have clean troughs and pure water, and, in the next place, that they could not enjoy the drinking of it out of buckets. A harnessed horse, in particular, should be able to drink from a trough high enough even to make unnecessary the loosening of the check rein, for drivers are frequently careless in the matter of looking after this little detail.

The good that is accomplished by such work is not confined to any locality, for the example is likely to be followed generally, as it should be.
